With G. E. Mortimore

IT'S that time again—time to complain about Christmas.

Columnists grumble about Christmas each year. The readers expect it. Unless they get at least one rousing attack on Christmas, they want their money back.

Grumbling at our commercialized Christmas has become a colorful tradition, like hanging the stockings or fetching the Yule log.

Usually I handle the chore myself. I have come to hate Christmas—or at least, the events that lead up to it, and the debts that follow. Therefore I can write with feeling.

This time, however, I am going to let an eloquent reader do the job for me—and I agree with every word he says:

"(In) long-past innocent days... the celebration of Christmas was preceded by a pleasant shopping expedition. Mostly it was to buy toys for the children, but it included also small presents as tokens of affection for relatives and close friends.

"The custom has been progressively debauched by the ballyhoo of people with things to sell. Presents have become steadily more elaborate, and gift-lists have grown to include all acquaintances who represent either obligation or opportunity.

"Sending greeting cards to seldom-seen friends has been perverted into an annual chore of revising last year's reciprocal list, and firing off a mound of expensive cards to one's entire personal, social and business acquaintances (except for those who dropped one from their list last year).

"In some small communities, a man's present to his wife, together with the price tag, has become competitive. With hyperthyroid urgency the hucksters galvanize us to start shopping with the Indian Summer so that we can make more people ecstatically happy by giving them more expensive Christmas presents.

"By December 25 the average citizen is reduced to a state of bad-tempered, exhausted bankruptcy. Something of a milestone was reached when the loan-sharks began advertising 'Personal loans to meet your Christmas obligations.'

"Sometimes a trend evolves so progressively that one can foretell the future from the past. The contemporary celebration of Christmas by spending money must in future develop along predictable lines. The obvious way to make Christmas more materialistic is to give each other money.

"Next, the amount to give one another will be agreed on in advance. Convenience will dictate that the money be sent by cheque. Next, also by mutual agreement, cheques will be exchanged, together with friendly cordiality, but not cashed.

"The penultimate step will be when we stop bothering with the cheques, and observe December 25 simply with expressions of good-will.

"At this point the final phase in the evolution of the winter solstice will come when the Christian Church recognizes the potential in a season of peace on earth and goodwill to all men—and appropriates it for a religious holiday."

'Mono...'—Kissing Disease Can Make You Miserable

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: So far you haven't commented on mono... the 'kissing disease.' I can't spell the rest of it, but I hope you know what I mean.

"How serious is it? What about diet? Is there anything besides rest that will hasten recovery?"—Z. B."

Yes, I know what you mean. I have, as a matter of fact, written about it before, but I have no doubt that "mono" has become of interest to many other readers who didn't happen to be interested the last time I discussed it.

"Mono" is infectious mononucleosis (mon-o-new-klee-OH-sis) which has often been called the "kissing disease" because we suspect, although we do not know, that it is probably transmitted by kissing, sneezing, etc.

HABIT OF SPREADING

We know from experience that it is primarily a disease of young adults, and has a habit of spreading in schools, colleges, or among other young people living in groups. It is also called "glandular fever" because, among other symptoms, there is often swelling and tenderness in the glands in the neck, armpits, groin, etc.

Other common symptoms include sore throat, some fever, headache, and marked fatigue or listlessness.

PRETTY MISERABLE

It isn't a disease calling for any great dread from the standpoint of being a threat to life, or leaving permanent damage afterward, but it can make the patient pretty miserable for a time, and can also, unless detected, make parents and teachers wonder why a good student suddenly becomes so "lazy" or lackadaisical. Further, unless a case is identified within a reasonable time, liver complication is possible.

For the long haul, however, the disease usually runs its course in a matter of a few weeks, although the tiredness may persist somewhat longer.

SELF-LIMITING

Diet isn't part of the treatment, except of course, to see that the patient has normally adequate nourishment. Except for rest, there is no specific treatment. It is what we call a "self-limiting disease," meaning that you nurse the patient along with full expectation that the disease will run its course and complete recovery will follow.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am concerned about my sister, who has marcytic anemia—red cells too large and not enough of them—C. F."

There are several types of this kind of anemia, the most common one being pernicious anemia. It is readily controlled by injections of Vitamin B₁₂, although before the discovery of that treatment, it was a very dangerous disease.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am an adult and would like to know if a few glasses of milk are all right. I like it and I am not overweight, but I have heard that milk hardens the arteries.—L. F."

A few glasses of milk a day aren't going to hurt you. As to hardening of the arteries, there are multiple factors involved—some we don't fully understand. But it is obvious that this cannot be blamed on any one food.

East Coast Ports Tied

SAVANNAH—Non-unionized terminal workers at state docks in Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina set up picket lines yesterday, tying up shipping in several east coast ports. Members of the International Longshoremen's Union (ILA) were not directly involved in the strike, but were expected to walk out in sympathy.

to $10,000,000," declared the premier. "That's how much profit they are after. They're asking for $10,000,000 profit. This is addition to the payment by B.C. to Canada of an estimated $70,000,000 in federal sales tax."

In addition, said Premier Bennett, Ottawa was demanding a share of the profits accruing from the development. If Ottawa loaned 50 per cent of the cost of the development they wanted 50 per cent of the profits.

NEW AGENCY
"Aside from this financial consideration, the federal government proposes, through the creation of a new and separate agency to carry out the development of a natural resource which belongs to the people of B.C. to effectively remove control of that resource from this province," he said.

"The proposal of the minister of finance for Canada is, therefore, unacceptable," he said.

ON THEIR BEHALF
"As stated before the B.C. government will meet its responsibility to the people of this province by carrying out the development on their behalf once the international questions are settled.

"We shall proceed forthwith to make the necessary financial arrangements and in order to facilitate this action

I shall again request from Mr. Fleming an answer to my question concerning the amount of an outright federal grant," he added.

NOT ASKING
Premier Bennett declared that B.C. was not asking the federal government to establish a new principle.

"We're just asking to be treated the same as the other provinces in the Confederation," he said, pointing out that Ottawa had given out right grants towards the South Saskatchewan dam, towards a scheme in Winnipeg and in New Brunswick.

LONG-TERM
"Thank goodness British Columbia is debt free," he said. "We will do all the borrowing in the power commission's name. It will mainly be long-term financing."

The premier said B.C. had not been able to plan too far ahead and was still hoping Ottawa would take a second look. He said that in rejecting the federal offer he wouldn't discuss the question with Justice Minister Fulton, who, with his aides in Victoria for a meeting of the Columbia policy liaison committee. Other federal ministers attending this conference are Resources Minister Dinsdale and Agriculture Minister Hamilton.

A joint federal-B.C. communiqué will be issued at the conclusion of this meeting today.

Fulton:

Mr. Fulton said Ottawa was not offering to lend the money.

"The offer is of a joint investment on the part of Canada in partnership with B.C. on a self-liquidating project."

Mr. Fulton said there had been constant repetition of the statement that Ottawa was offering a loan at the market rate plus one eighth of one per cent.

"This is not correct," he said. Indeed, while this suggestion had been mentioned some months ago, it was not even included in the letter received by Premier Bennett yesterday and had been dropped by Ottawa.

"There is a suggestion that the federal government wishes to share in the profits for the duration of the scheme," he added. "This is completely erroneous. We said only that we should share until our investment has been repaid."

"Another complete misrepresentation was that the federal government proposed to develop the natural resources which belong to the people of B.C. and effectively remove control from the province."

The federal government had suggested it participate in a partnership enterprise in which it would be represented only to the extent of its own interest in the project. It wanted to be sure that its interest was properly protected.

"It's abundantly clear that the physical control would remain with the province."

NOT PREPARED

The federal minister said one of the significant things about the situation was that Premier Bennett has not been prepared to discuss the matter with federal government representatives.

"He has preferred rather to indulge in public statements," he said.

Mr. Fulton charged that the federal government had tried to discuss the question with the province on several occasions but that Premier Bennett had forbidden his ministers to do so.

HALF COST

Ottawa was offering to advance half the cost of treating the storage necessary to bring the treaty into effect and to produce "enormous benefits to B.C." The offer involved no guarantee or liability on the part of the provincial government and the offer was on the basis that repayment would only be made as and when the earnings of the project made repayment possible, he said.

If B.C. wanted to retire the federal advance more quickly it could so.

ONE REASON

"One of the reasons why we insist on a partnership and supervision is because it is a fact the federal government policies and activities have made possible this agreement," said Mr. Fulton.

"We are not prepared to allow the benefits accruing under this treaty to be sold for cash in provincial revenues and to be used for the financing of other pet projects of the premier of B.C. Our interest in this field extends solely to seeing that enormous benefits of cheap power are passed on to the people of B.C.," continued Mr. Fulton.

"This is why we are determined there shall be a measure of federal supervision," he said.

Asked what form this supervision would take if B.C. went it alone Mr. Fulton said this would have to be determined. "I don't think the subject is closed at all," he said. "It may be his way of bargaining. I hope Premier Bennett will modify his position."

Bonner Hits Ottawa Invasion

for the province, said the question of a joint development of the Columbia was raised informally by the federal representatives at a previous meeting.

The federal offer was that Ottawa wanted to see an agency created which would itself raise money and in turn advance the money raised to the B.C. Power Commission.

"I personally pointed out that under this scheme the credit rating of such an agency would not be as good as either government or the B.C. Power Commission and that this could be a costly venture," said Mr. Bonner.

"This peculiar definition of investment makes it clear that the federal government did not propose to put a nickel of its own money into the Columbia but was really seeking that the agency created raise money on the credit of B.C. and its electricity-buying public."

"This suggestion was unanimously objected to by the B.C. representatives at that time and it must be obvious that, by repeating the suggestion in the Fleming letter just received, it was offered with the sovereignty of the province in administering its own resources," he said.

Mr. Bonner said that the extra charges which would be incurred under the federal government scheme would be more than one-eighth of one per cent or $40,000,000 during the term of the development.

TRIBUTE

"It is always a rewarding experience to see the Bank in action in the field and, this year, I have been particularly impressed by the way in which our staff have carried the burdens which difficult monetary conditions and intense competition have placed upon them." R. D. Mulholland, B of M General Manager, told the Bank's shareholders at their 143rd Annual Meeting.

"It is in circumstances such as these that the quality of a staff becomes unmistakably clear and I can assure you that the fine spirit which animates our men and

On Verge of Accepting U.S. Post at UN Offered to Adlai

Best Man For Job --Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President-elect John Kennedy yesterday asked Adlai Stevenson to join his administration as next U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and Stevenson indicated he might accept.

He said, however, that he first wanted to consider matters connected with the assignment, including the question of whether he could draft certain people he felt were needed to strengthen the U.S. delegation.

NOT ACCEPTED

"I have not accepted it (the nomination) pending a further talk," the two-time Democratic presidential candidate told reporters from the steps of Kennedy's Georgetown home, where he had conferred privately with the president-elect for 65 minutes.

Kennedy said he would meet with Stevenson for a final decision before the end of next week. Reporters who talked with the two got the impression at least that Stevenson was on the verge of accepting.

TOP OFFICIAL

The 60-year-old former Illinois governor also had been mentioned prominently as a possibility for secretary of state. But Kennedy associates said some time ago that Kennedy was thinking more in terms of the UN ambassador's job.

Kennedy made it clear that Stevenson, if he took the job, would be one of the top foreign policy officials in the new administration.

"I regard this as one of the three or four most important jobs in the United States government," Kennedy said.

UNDISCLOSED POSTS

Kennedy earlier offered undisclosed government posts to Byron (Whizzer) White, former all-America football great and now a Denver lawyer, and to John F. Hooker of Nashville, Tenn., a friend of the president-elect.

White's name has been mentioned as a possibility for attorney-general or solicitor-general. This was the first time Hooker's name had come up as far as was known.

INCREASED EMPHASIS

After his conference with Stevenson, Kennedy said he had offered him the United Nations job because he believed that the importance of the world body deserved "increased emphasis in 1961."

"The whole field of U.S. policy will be affected by the judgment, energy and responsibility" of the man who heads the American delegation, he said.

In his opinion, Kennedy went on, no American could fill the position with greater responsibility than Stevenson.

council that will work well in the coming year," he said, "and we are going to have a number of very important decisions to be made in 1961."

WELL-BALANCED

"I'm glad that we will have a well-balanced council to deal with the questions coming before it."

Ald. Arthur Dowell, senior alderman with 10 years' service, also was pleased with the results.

FINE MEN

"I think the two newcomers are very fine men and will be a real asset to council," he said. "I think we can now settle down to finalize some of the important projects in view of off-street parking, a new city hall, making preparations for our city centenary in 1962."

Ald. Curtis, who has served for four years on council and before that was for 14 years a school trustee, congratulated the other winners, but also had praise for the losers.

PERFORMED DUTY

"At least," he said, "they have the satisfaction of having performed a civic duty in standing for city council."

Mr. Griffin, "pleasantly surprised," said it was certainly his intention "to study the many problems facing the city and use my best judgment in seeking solutions equitable for all."

Mr. Hudson, who found the finish of the first-count race "quite exciting," promised to "go ahead and do my best in the job ahead of me."

Truman Aide State Secretary? Discoverer Held in Sky

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dean Rusk, 51, who served as an assistant secretary of state in the Truman administration, yesterday was reported under very serious consideration by President-elect John Kennedy for appointment as secretary of state.

Rusk, who was said on excellent authority to head the list of possible appointees, is head of the Rockefeller Foundation with headquarters in New York.

Kennedy Sparking Great Adventure

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Pulitzer Prize winner who worked for the Democratic party during the recent United States election said Wednesday night John Kennedy will lead the U.S. into a period of dynamic policy and activity.

Dr. Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., history professor now on leave from Harvard University, said:

"The great adventure of our time is just beginning. This is a new epoch of young leadership."

He said in a talk at UBC the U.S. now is on the upswing of a cycle of national feeling that VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—Discoverer XVIII whizzed around the earth every 94 minutes yesterday carrying a releasable capsule which was drinking up valuable information for future human space travellers.

The air force had contemplated releasing the 300-pound capsule for a recovery attempt later in the day but delayed the attempt because the satellite continued so effectively in orbit. The longer the capsule remains in orbit, the more valuable information it picks up, scientists said.

The capsule contained samples of human tissue and plant life and if recovered will give information on prolonged effects of radiation in the upper atmosphere.

The Storm Breaks

THE letter by professors of economics at leading Canadian universities to the government stating that they have lost confidence in the Bank of Canada under its present management is an extraordinarily strongly-worded document.

It comes on top of criticism of the Bank of Canada policy by the head executives of most of Canada's chartered banks, and of grave dissent by provinces and others of the way in which Canada's monetary supply is being handled.

Top rank in the criticism is the exchange value of the Canadian dollar, a state of affairs that is said by industrialists generally to be detrimental to Canada's competitive position in world markets.

The butt of the critics is Mr. James E. Coyne, the brilliant but controversial governor of the Bank of Canada. Mr. Coyne is an anti-inflationist, and he also has very determined theories on how Canada's monetary supply should be handled.

Yet strangely enough Mr. Coyne has consistently denied that he is responsible for Canada's tight money situation, although he has also declared that one function of his bank is to regulate the flow of money in the country.

The two statements are difficult to reconcile, and monetary experts are of no two opinions that it is "unrealism" of Bank of Canada policy which has sent two Canadian provinces this week to New York in search of their new financing. Both New Brunswick and Manitoba apparently feel they cannot make a reasonable bargain in the unsettled Canadian money market, despite the fact that the federal government is urging every Canadian to borrow and spend less abroad.

The aim cannot be achieved if Canadian interest rates are allowed "to bob like a cork at sea" to quote the words of one chartered bank president.

Underwriters complain that Bank of Canada policy has made investment in new Canadian senior securities so speculative that their customers have lost confidence.

The letter to Finance Minister Donald Fleming by the university professors amounts to an ultimatum for the governor's removal.

Taken in conjunction with the expressed feelings of bankers and other economists about the Bank of Canada policy, the situation now appears to be one in which the government will be forced to take a stand—either to support Mr. Coyne wholeheartedly, or to turn him out.

A Spectacular Echo

A SPECTACULAR echo of the war comes with news that Rudolf Hess may be released from the Spandau jail wherein he has languished since the Nuremberg trials. It was the former Hitler deputy who created a sensation by flying alone to Scotland in the naive belief that contact with a noble lord might make some arrangement between Britain and Germany possible.

In the result, when he landed on the estate of the Duke of Hamilton—famed Everest flier, amateur boxer and sturdy patriot of his native land—Hess was captured by a worker with a pitchfork and ignominiously put in prison.

Even then Hess was moody, introspective, strange in his outlook, and his years in Spandau have increased the imbalance of his mental condition. He has long been reported to be in poor health and a wreck of a man. No one could grudge him his liberty for he is past the age of misdeeds and probably in any case was never a vital instrument of the Hitler machine.

Other former Hitler associates have in turn been released, as have a number of military chiefs also condemned as war criminals at Nuremberg. The years cool wartime passions and magnanimity has its place in the postwar design of rehabilitating Europe by the burying of old animosities. Hess is now to be pitied more than anything else.

Agreement is necessary between the occupying powers of the U.S., Britain, France and the Soviet Union before either Hess, Von Shirach, former Hitler Youth leader, or former armaments minister Speer—the last of the Hitler group remaining at Spandau—can be released. The temper of opinion, however, has grown in favor of letting them go.

In the case of Hess nothing further is to be feared. He is 67 years of age and beyond physical or mental vigor. Presuming Von Shirach and Speer to be still in sound health they might bear a little watching. They are in their fifties and with the rising tide of German prosperity and resurgent national spirit they could be an inimical influence if they remain imbued with the philosophies which led to their present fate.

Wheat Crop Insurance

SOME misunderstanding appears to have been caused by Federal Agriculture Minister Hamilton's announcement of Prairie Farm Assistance payments to be made to wheat growers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba between now and the end of the year.

According to Mr. Hamilton's statement in Regina, payments by the end of this calendar year will have amounted to $11,395,000 under the 1960 crop failure relief program. Efforts apparently are being made to speed up the disbursements so that as many farms as possible will receive the money in time for Christmas.

Contrary to the misconception which has arisen in some quarters, none of this money is coming out of the Canadian taxpayers' pockets. It is in fact some of the wheat farmers' own money returning to them.

These disbursements have nothing to do with the "deficiency payment" plan for Canada's wheat growers which Prime Minister Diefenbaker rejected six months ago. They represent crop insurance under a scheme set up by federal statute but supported wholly by those who stand to benefit.

Crop failure insurance is paid out from a fund created by means of a levy of 1 per cent on every bushel of grain sold in the prairie provinces through regular channels. Disbursements from the fund are made under a formula based on the yield per acre in any particular harvest.

The scheme is a little like unemployment insurance, except that the wheat farmers have no employers to share with them the payments into the fund, as have contributors to unemployment insurance.

Interpreting the News

Backing Losing Horses

By CARMAN CUMMING, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A GROWING concern within the United States over the basic American attitude toward the nationalistic movements of Asia, Africa and Latin America has been articulated by the U.S. National Council of Churches.

In blunt terms, a report to the influential body has deplored the U.S. passion for maintaining the status quo. And it has urged the U.S. to take sides with the reform struggles in backward countries.

On a theoretical level, politicians and businessmen may applaud this as a noble sentiment. In practical terms, there is no chance that U.S. foreign policy, inextricably harnessed with the U.S. dollar, could accomplish such an about-face.

The inevitable result is that the U.S. finds itself holding tickets on such losing horses as Fulgencio Batista, Syngman Rhee or Adnan Menderes.

More recently the U.S. has tacitly or overtly backed the "status quo" regimes in a rash of Latin American outbreaks in Guatemala, Nicaragua, Venezuela and Argentina. No one seriously expects it to do otherwise.

Nevertheless, the national council report points out areas where the U.S. could make friends outside the local bureaucracies without stepping on any toes.

The council notes reports of a "massive human suffering" in Brazil and asks: "What reaction have we shown? ... What reaction will we show if it becomes another Cuba? Do we really care for people as people?"

It also comments that when Guinea became independent, five months passed before the U.S. sent a charge d'affaires to open an embassy.

"Our indifference and inertia contrasted with Moscow's alertness and speed. No wonder Guinea is under Moscow influence."

A special report on Cuba also criticized American indifference. It said a social revolution was "long overdue" in Cuba and cited "appalling lack of knowledge" in the U.S. of the situation under dictator Batista.

Thinking Aloud The Good Round Insult

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

UNEASY lies the head that wears a crown, they say, and the Queen's bust has been decapitated. The work of some silly ass, obviously.

The Mayor talks of replacing the concrete statue by a bronze replica, but perhaps it would be better to forget the whole thing. The memorial was hastily conceived to begin with, and its several vicissitudes invoked a ridicule that was inconsistent with its subject.

This city is not conditioned to public statues, of which there are few to be seen; and it looks as though it is not mature enough to accept public monuments in its stride. The earlier controversy about the bust made that plain enough.

Seeking no doubt to hit the headlines, again Malcolm Muggeridge, quondam editor of "Punch," says that Sir Winston Churchill's prose style "is the worst penned by man." That alone indicts his judgment, but one thing seems clear. Mr. Muggeridge will never win a Nobel prize for his prose style.

He returns once more to an attack on the monarchy, also, this time by saying it is like a soap opera and "a God-awful bore." If only he could look in the mirror and see himself as others see him he'd recognize that it is he who is a God-awful bore.

A pity that "O Canada" did not manage to get aboard HMS Pinafore at the Royal the other night. After all that good Gilbertian spirit was tied up at a Canadian dock. But possibly it was just as well. Had its tempo copied that of "God Save the Queen" slowed apparently to suit the immobile state of the ship—two mournful anthems would have been unbearable.

The performance of the G and S society itself offered a gay rebuttal. The whole show was delightful, and produced with a verve that did its directors credit. This city is full of musical and dramatic talent; let no one say otherwise in your presence.

An Oak Bay reader is shocked that I should refer to Scotland, as I did recently, as "North Britain." I am a bit shocked now at my temerity, although in a spurge of research to appease my conscience I find that this has been a colloquial term of reference since 1708. But I hasten to apologize just the same. I'll be careful in future; for a while anyway.

I was somewhat surprised to read that Mounties applauded the Ice Capades girls, in Vancouver, who wore their uniform in a skating sequence. I had gained the impression that the RCMP turned its thumbs down on entertainers who borrowed their distinctive dress. But I suppose it would be the girls they were applauding, not the uniform.

If Premier Bennett is looking for an easy way to raise money he could take a tip from Prime Minister Macmillan. The latter has increased the prizes for Britain's premium-bond scheme, under which a bondholder has a chance every month in a prize-drawing. All he loses is the minuscule interest that a one-pound bond would accrue, and he can sell his bond back at face value any time.

So popular is the scheme—and beneficial to the treasury—that the football pools are feeling the pinch of its competition. And, Mr. Macmillan observed—no doubt drily—no one has had his morals corrupted.

Anyway, a prize bond of this kind is simon pure compared to the dabbling in liquor and horse-racing that B.C., along with other Canadian governments, indulges in.

THE British Prime Minister, Mr. Harold Macmillan, has the soul of an artist. He expects from politics something more than a sober conflict of high-minded good intentions. He expects a contest in strong emotional and verbal backhanders.

He recalls John Randolph calling Edward Livingstone "a man of splendid abilities but utterly corrupt; like a rotten mackerel by moonlight, he shines and stinks." That is admirable and pictorially imaginative. It is far superior to another favorite of Mr. Macmillan's, when Daniel O'Connell said that Disraeli "must be descended from one of the thieves who hung by our Saviour's side."

That has strength, but its sly anti-semitic thorn is weakened by the too obvious context of the insult. It is also unrelieved insult, which eases the intensity of the weapon because it is less enjoyable. Randolph slugs suddenly upward from an elegant bowing position: "a man of splendid abilities . . . but utterly corrupt."

Mr. Macmillan expressed modest gratitude for an insult from a recent British by-election in which one candidate described another as a "supercilious carpetbagger." Mr. Macmillan licked his chops mildly; "that's more the stuff," he said.

In the days when "the stuff" was common, nobody came to any great harm, because less attention was paid to content than to color. Undoubtedly in the coffee houses there were tasteful parties when the best head beatings on the hustings or in the House were rolled around the cheeks like a new brand of coffee.

Public men must be protected from false charges, of course, but could Disraeli prove that he was not descended from one of the thieves on the two other crosses? Millions of people are committed to the view that it is altogether possible and in a community almost as large as the Christian community, it may well be heresy to deny the possibility.

Graft and corruption are not necessarily the same. An innocent man may be spared charges of graft but need he be spared the charge of corruption? No serious theologian with experience of ecclesiastical politics would go to court as a witness for the defence if I were sued for accusing a random selection of ecclesiastical politicians of corruption. The word is wide.

Without question a man who does not understand the meaning of the three Temptations in the Wilderness is either dull witted or spiritually corrupt and probably both and I ought to be perfectly safe in describing quite a number of church politicians as "stupid and corrupt ecclesiastics." Spiritual corruption is subtle and elusive and the commonest malady. What, after all, have I said that is not a comment on the human condition?

The point I am making is that we should develop a new vocabulary of insult. It must be of such an order that it is beyond definition, or open to several constructions according to the content of the receiving mind. A development of the method of H. L. Mencken would restore some of the collector's pleasure to political disputation.

Mr. Mencken dwelt on the unfortunate characters of some of Mr. Hoover's aides. Claudius H. Huston, for instance, "... helped to round up the blackamoors, the Ku-Kluxers and the Methodist clergy . . . an embattled evangelist against the Pope . . . a Christian businessman" and into every virtue he insinuates a suggestion of sanctimonious repulsiveness. But he never says so.

Another Hoover aide was Simeon D. Fess, and to Mencken he was "a Methodist pedagogue who had got on in the world and jimmied himself into the U.S. senate by eager and dog-like services to the anti-saloon league." "Methodist" falls with different tones on different ears and a "pedagogue" may also be a bigwig, a swot, a grind, a bookworm or a scholar.

A careless reader would almost certainly catch Mencken's intention by reading "jimmied" as "jimmied." An author cannot be held responsible for every careless reader, and Brutus is an honorable man.

With the verbal insipidity of contemporary debate has come an evil far more destructive than the robust insult of other days. Men who could not hold their own in the colorful skills of a public slanging match resort increasingly to the whispered smear, particularly in politics.

The whispered smear, so far as my observation goes, is becoming commoner in municipal politics. The interesting thing about it is that it is employed by men whose taint is no secret and who therefore cannot be injured. Hardened in the experience of living boldly in their own dirt, they are aware of the potent fear of disrepute that hangs in the hearts of honest men. "Dirt sticks," and opposition shrinks from those who spread it in sinister quietness.

Good round insult, especially if it is clever good round insult with a touch of literary inspiration, gives to the public content something of the interest and excitement of an erudite and intelligent panel. It raises the level of public participation above the whispering gutter into the realm of vigorous and modestly intellectual comedy.

The man who has neither wit nor humor, is, of course, at a grave disadvantage but the public is thereby enabled, if it has the sense, to keep the witless and humorless from public life and confine them to hearth and home and the circle that knows them, and loves them just the same.

Bewildering Performance

Mr. Argue, Meet Mr. Hall

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

THE three-cornered dispute between railway unions, railway managements and the government has obviously placed Mr. Hazen Argue, the CCF leader, in a position of considerable embarrassment. Mr. Argue, as an enthusiastic promoter of the New Party, has had a good deal to say about the community of interest which, allegedly, exists among the farmers, unionists and other prospective supporters of that prospective political group.

In the House of Commons Mr. Argue endorsed the claims of the railway workers, suggesting that the government if necessary should resolve the dispute by the payment of an interim subsidy until next spring.

The same evening Mr. Frank Hall in a radio debate defended the union claim to wage increases with at least two arguments which must have troubled his parliamentary supporter.

In the first place Mr. Hall described the freeze on railway freight rates as a "great mistake." He said that the railways "should be allowed to make the money they can," increasing rates for example, on captive traffic. He also claimed that the railways are "inhibited in their railway earnings by such things as the Crow's Nest Pass rates."

But Mr. Argue, coming from a western wheat farming riding, supports the Crow's Nest Pass rates. Moreover, in the House of Commons on June 28, he welcomed extension of the freeze on the ground that freight rates have been increased 157 per cent since the war and that the government's action "would prevent any increase . . . at this time."

Mr. Hall, understandably from his point of view, was also concerned to demonstrate that the railways can well afford to pay more money in wages. He painted a most glowing picture of the present state of affairs in the country, concluding with the statement that "there's nothing the matter with our economy—there's nothing the matter basically with the railroad industry."

This certainly is not the view of Mr. Argue, who sees a great deal of the matter with the economy. It is certainly not the view of western farmers. But Mr. Hall apparently considers it essential to the union case which Mr. Argue, as prospective leader of the New Party, feels it his duty to support.

As a demonstration of the supposed community of interest, on which Mr. Argue is an authority, this is surely a performance to bewilder the Canadian public.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A YEAR or so ago when one of our wealthiest old citizens died I was asked to come to the house to obtain some biographical material about him for publication. I had always imagined, as most of us do, that the rich live in a sort of splendid far removed from the humdrum domestic style of the average home. The movies over the past 40 years have encouraged this belief, as well as those magazines you see in hotel lounges devoted to portraying the gracious life and the homes of the fashionable.

I was thunderstruck on entering the mansion of the late departed. Very imposing on the outside, it was nothing but a most comfortable and unpretentious home inside. The furniture all looked as if it had been used and enjoyed for years. One of the sons, seeing me looking at the undistinguished paintings in the hall, said:

"The old man was very fond of these old things."

Maybe young brides with well-to-do parents can have homes that look like the movie version of gracious living. But after a few babies come, and a few growing boys romp and bang around the house, and the years flow by and a man and woman grow old and even wealthy, a home takes on a character based rather on the affection one feels for old familiar things rather than for the dictates of interior decoration. I wrote a much kinder obituary of the old man than I had in mind before I entered his home.

Letters to the Editor

Cuts Two Ways

One must sympathize with the feelings of the local merchants, reported in Thursday's Colonist, when they see the crews of ships of the RCN returning from abroad laden with foreign purchases.

But are they being fair?

The sailors do not go abroad for pleasure trips. They are sent there by the taxpayers for the purpose of practicing their profession in order that they may protect the trade that keeps the merchants in business. These visits also advertise Canada and Canadian goods abroad.

If other citizens may import a fixed value in foreign goods free of duty, why should not the comparatively small group of sailors serving in sea-going ships? That they, in common with all other citizens, have this privilege is one of the few compensations they have for long periods spent far from home in the service of their country.

Would the grumbling merchants, finding themselves in similar circumstances to the sailors, forego the opportunity to buy goods abroad?

Cars or Homes?

The fundamental cause of unemployment is that there is too much of the people's money being channeled into one industry, the automobile industry, whereas if this or a greater part of it were used for building homes it would create employment in a hundred industries which are required when a house is built.

If the house-building industry would step up their advertising to a par with that of the luxury trades it would help to spread the wealth into all those industries which supply the necessary needs for furnishing the home after the building is completed. The furnishings of a home channels money into every corner of our country instead of localizing it in one or two places.

Share the wealth.

Islanders Plumping For Canada Goose

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Vancouver Islanders are plumping strongly for the Canada Goose to become the national bird of Canada.

Voting in a Colonist ballot to select Canada's national bird has been more than three to one in favor of the magnificent Canada goose, but the Canada Jay (or whisky jack), robin, mountain blue bird and meadow lark are all still in the running.

ACROSS CANADA

The Colonist is the voice of British Columbia in the national bird ballot, but voting will take place all across Canada and a national tabulation will be made to select the popular choice of all Canadians.

The more British Columbians who vote through the Colonist ballot, the stronger the British Columbia voice will be when a national selection is made.

AT HOME HERE

"As its name indicates, the Canada Goose is at home here," says Mrs. Maria Kinsinger, 3941 Cumberland.

"It is beautiful, despite being shot extensively, it is smart enough to keep up to the loss, and is known all over," says David S. Williams, 10854 Madrona.

"It is already associated with Canada in people's minds," says Mrs. M. Gibbs of Sidney.

NOBLE BIRD

"It is such a noble, unusual bird and would symbolize Canada to me wherever I saw it," says Mrs. W. Donaldson, 1014 Rockland.

"It is more intelligent than many humans," says Mrs. M. Hartley, 323 Windermere.

"I thrill to its wild call, to and from Alaska," says Mrs. H. Henslowe of Duncan.

MAJESTIC

"They are such majestic birds. I have had them eat from my hand," says Mrs. H. M. Jones of Malahat.

"He is a true native son, no matter how far he wanders," says Robert Noble, 1256 Oakmount Road.

"It looks like a dignified intelligent bird . . . something 'stable' is what we need for Canada," says E. O. Woods, 895 Heywood.

"Symbolic of the challenge of Canada, I love that bird," says W. F. Grafton of Brentwood.

"It is distinctive, well known and is found in most parts of Canada," say the Prefects of Founder's House, 3450 Richmond.

"It is depicted on our postage stamps and it is already well known . . ." says Mrs. John Craig, 3079 Orillia.

UNINTENTIONAL

Mrs. Fred Christopher, Empress Hotel, takes the Colonist to task with a charge of prejudice, which we assure her was unintentional.

"You very cleverly nominated the Canada goose by publishing its photograph closely adjacent to the national bird coupon. This is outright subliminal advertising of your choice. . . . However since I agree with your choice, I shall not complain too violently of your tactics, which are both fowl and foul," she writes.

Those are some of the opinions of persons for the Canada goose, but others were just as enthusiastic for their choice.

"It is a president of each home with a garden or lawn," says H. P. Boucher, 2218 Beach Drive, about the robin.

FOREST PLAYBOY

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Worthington-Lake, 851 Maddison, plump for the whisky jack, or Canada jay. "It is particularly identifiable with Canada. It does not migrate from Canada. . . . It is the playboy of the forests, the companion of the explorers, the constant visitor to the isolated cabins. . . . It is Canada," they say.

GUY ROCKWELL

Rockwell Flown To Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Former Seattle antique dealer Guy Rockwell was flown to Seattle from New York yesterday to face a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid giving testimony about human remains found last summer in Rockwell's house.

The bodies were identified as those of Rockwell's wife and stepdaughter. He had been sought since disappearing in September.

Rockwell was arrested in New York last week by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

UN Rejects Mobutu Order

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — United Nations officials Thursday angrily rejected a new Congolese government regulation and condemned it as "the most serious challenge" yet to UN operations here.

The new regulation gives Five Katangan policemen and breakaway Katanga province about 30 tribal warriors were slain in the clash near Kongo, 700 miles north of Elisabethville, reports said.

Transport Ruling 'Serious Challenge'

Congolese government is trying to "paralyze the whole UN action in the Congo."

"We are not prepared to accept this decision at all," he said. "It is in complete violation of all agreements between the Congolese authorities and the United Nations. It is the most serious challenge to date to the working of the United Nations here."

Army strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu's regime has ordered transports to carry only UN medical and food supplies unless specific authorization is obtained from the government.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) —

The Soviet Union accused Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld of encouraging "a gang of murderers" to carry out cruel and inhuman acts against deposed Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin lashed out also at the United States and its NATO allies as the forces behind attempts to physically remove Lumumba and his associates as the legal government.

Arena Stew Won't Boil Dry Lid's Been On, Off for Weeks

By R. O. MARRION

Five weeks' fighting in the open and behind closed doors has achieved nothing final in the arena controversy—and has left some Victorians full of suspicions and some wondering what all the fuss is about.

"It's a mess," a storekeeper said yesterday. "They ought to kick out everybody concerned and start afresh."

"We don't really know what's been going on," said a printer. "There ought to be a public inquiry with sworn evidence."

SILLIEST SQUABBLE

"Silliest squabble I ever heard of!" said a butcher, "Joe Dukowski and the staff have been doing a good job, and I can't see what all the fighting is about. Everyone ought to get back to work and forget it."

The controversy stemmed from the resignation in October of arena office manager Kenneth Noakes and in quick succession, five other employees, in protest against Joseph Dukowski's management.

Immediate cause of Mr. Noakes' resignation apparently was that Mr. Dukowski spoke so roughly to a woman employee that she cried.

HOLD INQUIRY

Commissioner Courtney Haddock, it was learned, proposed that the arena commission hold an inquiry into the series of resignations, but the other commissioners took the stand that they had nothing to inquire into.

But Ald. Hugh Ramsay pressed for a report from the commission on the situation. It became known that Mr. Dukowski had employed his daughter and son-in-law at the arena, that he had not dismissed them as soon as ordered, and that he had been "severely reprimanded" by the commission.

CLOSED HEARING

Engaged as counsel by the six ex-employees, E. E. Pearlman called for a public inquiry, and so did the press, a couple of aldermen and apparently a large part of the public. The demand resulted in a closed hearing of the ex-employees and Mr. Dukowski by the commission.

The majority of the commission had held that Mr. Dukowski had been a successful manager of the arena and should be retained although he had made "mistakes."

After the hearing, however, the commission accepted "with regret" Mr. Dukowski's resignation, effective in 90 days, and resolved to restaff the arena quickly, considering applications from the ex-employees. And Mr. Haddock said he was quitting because Mr. Dukowski wasn't dismissed at once and the other six rehired.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

The commission won a vote of confidence from city council—and withdrawal of Mr. Haddock's resignation—with an assurance that all the ex-employees would be fairly treated, but it soon became apparent that the commission wasn't planning to rehire Mr. Noakes, and the others would not go back singly without him.

That led to a blast from Mr. Haddock against the commission and a meeting, called by the mayor, of the commission and council.

At the meeting, the majority of the commissioners made their point of view clear: that they thought Mr. Noakes had let the arena down by resigning at the beginning of a busy season, that they considered he had been associated with Mr. Dukowski in all that had gone on at the arena, and that therefore they didn't think he should be rehired.

REHIRE ALL SIX

But the commission was sent away with the suggestion that it rehire all six employees at least pending the decision of a new manager on their suitability to requirements.

The commission, after many hours of dispute, came up with a compromise.

It is understood to be that Mr. Dukowski will be offered a job at reduced salary as promotions and building manager, that a new general manager will be engaged, and that all six ex-employees will have their jobs back.

SPECIAL MEETING

The proposals will be put before city council at a special meeting today.

And, chances are, the arena controversy will continue because council is much further from unanimity than the commission on these questions:

● Have Mr. Dukowski's "mistakes" been serious enough to bar him from continued employment?

● Have Mr. Noakes and the other employees who resigned rather than work with Mr. Dukowski rendered themselves undesirable as employees by the way and the time they chose to draw the situation to attention?

● Has the commission been keeping close enough watch on arena affairs? Has it put the city in a bad position by its handling of the whole matter?

● If so, should the commissioners be asked to resign?

Red Rocket Experts Blown Up?

ROME (UPI)—An Italian news agency said last night about 100 persons including three of Russia's top missile experts were killed in the explosion of a new type of Soviet rocket on Oct. 21.

The news agency Contintale said the three missile experts were Air Marshal Mitrofan I. Nedeln, Gen. Nikolai O. Pavlovsky and atomic expert Prof. Dimitri V. Efremov.

The deaths of the missile experts had been announced by the Russians separately and without details.

Army Censors Army Show

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—The British War Office has ordered an official inquiry into why a commanding officer barred his soldiers from watching a television comedy about army life. What happened was this: The King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry depot in Yorkshire on Tuesday became the first British army camp to install TV sets in barracks. That night the men tuned in by dropping coins into a slot on the set. On the screen came the slapstick antics of some comedians who weekly do a knockabout show called The Army Game. The following day Maj. William Cook, the commander, stuck this notice over the sets: "The Army Game is a form of entertainment which appears to portray little that bears any relation to the present day army. It should not be viewed by the troops." London newspapers front-paged the story. The War Office called for an official inquiry. To reporters Cook said: "I watched this program for the first time Tuesday night. It in no way resembled the army at all. It gives people the impression that chaps who join are unemployed morons who go to bed in battle dress."

Actor William Hartnell, who plays a tough sergeant-major in the TV series, said in an interview: "I think we should have a new plot in next week's program all about me stopping the boys watching TV. That should cause a riot." In Parliament, Labor MP Marcus Lipton said he would demand from the minister of war an explanation for banning the program.

Electrical Giants Admit Price-Fix

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Nineteen of the largest United States manufacturers of electrical equipment machinery pleaded guilty in some cases and no defence in others yesterday to federal anti-trust charges of price-fixing and bid-rigging. Ten other companies pleaded no defence. The cases involved annual sales estimated at $2,000,000,000 a year, mainly to governmental bodies and industry. All told, there were 72 guilty pleas and 88 of no defence. One individual, W. G. Rowland of Westinghouse Electric Company, pleaded not guilty. Charges were dropped against Arthur Vinson of General Electric Company. U.S. district judge J. Culleo Ganey deferred sentencing until next year. But he told lawyer for the defendants that he considered the guilty and no defence pleas of equal weight. Westinghouse was named in 19 of the 20 indictments. It pleaded guilty to seven. General Electric was named in 19 and admitted guilt to six. Herbert Brownell, former U.S. attorney-general now representing Westinghouse, asserted that "unlawful acts, if any, of its employees charged with pricing responsibility have not only been unauthorized but contrary to specific instruction."

Import Controls Sought

OTTAWA (CP)—Leaders of the Canadian electronics industry called on the government yesterday to help it meet stiff Japanese competition. A delegation headed by James Key, president of the Electronics Industries Association, Toronto, presented a brief and a series of charts to Prime Minister Diefenbaker. The brief was not made public but an informant said it called on the government to abolish the present 15 per cent excise tax on radio and television sets and parts and to impose direct controls limiting the importation of Japanese electronic units and tubes. Japanese imports should be limited to 10 per cent of Canadian sales of electronic equipment, the association told the government. The industry also complained of a drop in defence orders.

Three Sent to Jail For Break-In, Theft

Three men who had pleaded guilty to breaking, entry and theft at an Elk Lake service station were given jail sentences in Saanich police court yesterday.

Robert Allister Borgal, 723 Yates, and Donald Nelson, no fixed address, were sentenced to two years less a day. Both had been given similar sentences in Colwood police court earlier on burglary charges involving a Malahat service station and offences in Ladysmith and Chemainus.

The sentences were made concurrent. Bela Plocza, no fixed address, was given an 18-month sentence by Magistrate William Ostler in Saanich court for the Elk Lake offence. He asked for leniency because "he was in love and hoped to marry a fine girl."

For the same offences dealt with in Colwood, Magistrate A. I. Thomas sentenced Robert B. Jackson, no fixed address, and Albert Jenik, Vancouver, to two years in the penitentiary.

Fine of $10 was levied on D. A. Thomson, 2811 Dean, for faulty installation of a chimney, contrary to fire marshal's regulations. Court was told the installation had been corrected.

Two men accused of possessing a portion of some cash stolen in a Nov. 6 safe-cracking at Household Finance Corp. were freed in city court yesterday.

Robert H. Radmore, 19, Victoria, and Gordon Sinclair Fleeton, Victoria, 25, were charged originally with breaking, entering and theft, but this charge was withdrawn when the second was laid.

Yesterday no evidence was entered, the charge against Radmore was withdrawn and that against Fleeton dismissed.

In County Court yesterday Ronald Morry, 395 Gorge, was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment with hard labor for his share in a break-and-entry Nov. 24 in which 20 packages of cigarettes were stolen.

The robbery occurred at Mai's Cafe, 2251 Government. Morry's brother Frederick and a woman companion, Patricia Joseph, were sentenced in city court to two years and to two months, respectively.

Think of Future-Douglas

Make Medical Gains 'Available to All'

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Premier T. C. Douglas Wednesday night told the 58th annual dinner of the Edmonton Academy of Medicine there is a need for a new mental approach toward medicine.

"We must stop thinking in terms of the past and grapple with the problems of the future," he said. "The time has come when doctors, patients and society generally must make benefits of medical science available to all who need it irrespective of their individual ability to pay."

He said, "All over the North American continent there is a growing concern about the provision of health services for those who need them."

BEST IN WORLD "American medicine is the best in the world," he said. "But millions of people are dissatisfied with the medical care they are getting."

"The reason for this is that social and economic aspects of medicine have failed to keep pace with the scientific and technological progress achieved in this field," he said.

The advances in medical science have resulted in increased cost of providing medical care and in spite of our higher standard of living "an increasing number of people are unable to meet the heavy costs inherent in a serious or prolonged illness."

COMPREHENSIVE SYSTEM Premier Douglas said the time has come for a comprehensive system of health insurance. Such a system must be based on five basic principles.

First, it must be based on the prepayment principle. "It is important that people understand they cannot get something for nothing," he said.

Secondly, the program must have universal coverage.

THIRDLY, and in Premier Douglas' opinion the major objective, is to provide a high quality of medical care.

His fourth principle is that health insurance must be government-sponsored and administered by a public body responsible to the legislature or parliament.

The fifth principle, Premier Douglas said, is that a health insurance program must be acceptable to both those providing the service and those receiving it.

Highways Projects Announced

The provincial highways department has allotted $65,000 for two winter works projects in the Esquimalt riding, MLA Herbert Bruch said yesterday.

Some $45,000 will be spent on the Bilston Creek bridge in Metchosin and department architects are now working on bridge plans.

Some $20,000 will be spent on the rebuilding of a section of the Sooke highway, just past the Sooke River.

Mr. Bruch says the provincial recreation department has plans to build a small park and boat launching ramp at a later date around the section of the old Sooke highway which will be bypassed by the new construction.

Fifth Fine, No Licence

In Saanich court yesterday, Kenneth Harvey Fox, 19, of Duncan, who pleaded guilty to his fifth charge of driving without a licence was fined $75 and told there would be a recommendation to the motor vehicles superintendent that he not be given a licence.

Magistrate William Ostler told him he showed "astounding defiance of the law for one of his age."

Langford Mill Stirs Storm

A small sawmill, employing four or five men, is to be built on the old woodyard site on Durnford Road, Langford, by Safeway Sawmills, Ltd., a newly-formed company.

Surdar Singh, secretary of the new company, said the mill would be all-electric and smoke-free.

TO PROTEST

But 70 residents of Durnford Road and vicinity have signed a petition opposing the mill.

Mrs. Bonnie Brown, 880 Durnford, a leader of the anti-mill group, said she and her neighbors objected to the mill on the grounds that it would be a fire hazard, traffic hazard, and a source of noise.

SEEK RULING

They have asked Langford Fire Protection District to look into the possibility of having the mill ruled out as a fire hazard.

"There are no building permits in this area," replied Langford Fire Chief Ritchie LeQuenne, "and even if I wished, I have no power to stop construction."

The petitioners plan to take their case to the trustees of Langford fire protection district, and to the minister of municipal affairs.

Philippines Sign Pact With Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan and the Philippines, bitter wartime enemies, yesterday signed an historic treaty of amity, commerce and navigation.

The treaty was the first full-fledged trade and friendship pact Japan has signed with a Southeast Asian nation since the end of the Second World War. It was signed almost 19 years to the day after Japanese forces invaded the Philippines in their attempt to bring all Asia under Japanese domination.

The treaty, 10 months in negotiation, was signed in a simple ceremony at the Japanese foreign ministry.

Tories Talk Of Reuniting

A motion calling for the amalgamation of the provincial and federal Progressive Conservative Associations in B.C. will be presented at the annual convention of the provincial body to be held at the Hotel Vancouver Saturday.

The two groups used to be one, but split during a difference of opinion between the provincial and federal cliques five or six years ago.

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Washington State Supreme Court Judge Joseph Mallory Thursday accused the Negro race of trying to deprive whites of the right to choose their associates in private affairs.

The 64-year-old veteran jurist also said he had been the victim of retaliation by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People over his position in a previous case involving racial discrimination.

Judge Mallory gave his opinion in a case involving a cemetery's refusal to permit burial of a Negro child in a restricted section.

The state Supreme Court ruled 5 to 3 that the state law barring racial discrimination by cemeteries was unconstitutional because of a technicality.

NEW YORK — State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz says acrobatic dancer Nicolas Darvas, who wrote the best-seller "How I Made $2,000,000 on the Stock Market," really made only about one-tenth of that. He has obtained a state Supreme Court order requiring the author and others to appear Dec. 20 with his books and records.

NEW YORK — President-elect John Kennedy has made the momentous decision—he'll wear a silk topper at his inauguration. President Eisenhower broke tradition and wore a homburg at his inauguration in 1952.

HOLLYWOOD — Actor William Talman, 45, arrested earlier this year on narcotics and morals charges, has been reinstated in the role of district attorney on TV's "Perry Mason" series.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Hayden Stanton, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, died in hospital here early yesterday.

LONDON — Prime Minister Macmillan has turned down a suggestion that he invite Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai here to discuss a United Nations membership for the Peking government.

ROME — Pope John knelt Thursday in prayerful homage before the flower-decked statue of the Virgin Mary in a crowded Rome square on the feast day of the Immaculate Conception.

OTTAWA — Dr. C. W. Argue, dean of science at UBC, has been appointed to the fisheries research board of Canada.

NEW ORLEANS — The FBI is investigating an alleged threat "to get" Rev. Andrew Foreman, a white Methodist minister who has permitted his daughter Pamela to attend an integrated school.

MOSCOW — Premier Nikita Khrushchev, suffering from influenza since the weekend, is out of bed but is not being allowed by his doctors to go outdoors.

TORONTO — Ian Eccles, 45-year-old Toronto man who claimed his wife's divorce case against him was rigged, said Wednesday night he will "blow the top off the divorce racket" if a charge of perjury is laid against him in connection with the case.

TORONTO — Dr. Maarten Rooy, director of the Institute of Communications at the University of Toronto group, "Radio and television stations should undertake not to make shoe polish and shoe polish manufacturers should undertake not to make radio and television programs."

BUENOS AIRES — A hunt for Gen. Miguel Angel Indiguez, the military brain behind last week's abortive revolt, has spread to Santa Fe City.

Cubans Seek Imports

OTTAWA (UPI) — A 10-man Cuban trade delegation arrived yesterday with plans to buy up to one-quarter of Cuba's 1961 imports from Canada.

Economics Minister Reginald Boti, the delegation leader, said Cuba would like to import $150,000,000 worth of Canadian heavy equipment, like bulldozers and tractors, spare parts, electrical motors, wheat, cattle and newsprint.

$15,000,000 A YEAR
He said Cuba imports about $700,000,000 worth of goods annually and that the United States had supplied $450,000,000 of that total before it placed embargoes on trade with Cuba two months ago. He said Canadian imports have been running at about $15,000,000 annually.

Boti said Cuba had the cash to pay for the goods. Asked about reports Cuba's dollar reserves were dwindling, he replied: "That is wishful thinking on the part of those who wish to see the Cuban revolution stopped."

TO MEET HEES
Boti said he has an appointment today with Canadian Trade Minister George Hees and also plans to meet with Canadian exporters and producers. He said the delegation might also travel to Montreal and Toronto during its week-long visit here.

"You never know about these things," said a Canadian trade department official. The delegation ran into a snag immediately after landing when seven of the members could not produce international vaccination books as required by Canadian law, both parties.

"For all I know," he said, "it was a friendly agreement."

Homesick Habitant Captured, Warriors Tonight's Quarry

Victoria Cougars, who have signed Ted Lebodia for a tryout and found renewed hopes of persuading veteran Pete Wright to come out of self-imposed retirement, may have a choice of seven defencemen before they return home from a Prairie road trip, which starts Tuesday in Calgary.

Scheduled to join the club in Calgary along with Lebodia

Sugar Moving To Europe To Keep Busy

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson said Tuesday he is postponing retirement ideas and plans a combined boxing-movie making career in Europe.

Robinson, who failed to win the National Boxing Association middleweight championship in a 15-round draw last Saturday with titleholder Gene Fullmer, said he hopes to fight leading European middleweights, especially Germany's Gustav Scholz.

Robinson also said he will make a movie in Italy for producer Felice Zappala.

Manager George Gainford said Robinson will bill himself in Europe as the world champion, despite the draw with Fullmer and the two defeats suffered earlier this year to Paul Pender, the recognized champion in New York and Massachusetts.

Fullmer, now back home in West Jordan, Utah, and his manager, Marv Jensen, are contemplating a crack at Archie Moore, the suspended world light heavyweight champion, here in the spring.

Victoria coach George Agar was a bit loathe to admit anything when questioned about the truth of a report that Roy had been finally located and had agreed to join the Cougars.

THIS TIME BY PLANE "You know what happened last time," Agar said. But under prodding he said he had spoken to Roy by telephone and that the veteran had agreed to leave his Quebec City home by plane Sunday.

"I think he's satisfied and I think that this time he'll show up," Agar stated.

Roy was obtained from the Chicago Black Hawks, who own his contract, and at first appeared to have no objection to coming to Victoria. He started the trip by car but his youngster became sick, Mrs. Roy also got ill and the family group ran into snow. The first thing the Roy family knew they had reversed direction and were heading back home.

However, hockey is Roy's livelihood and he's going back to work.

JOBS AT STAKE

Wright's decision is expected by this evening and he, too, may join the Cougars in Calgary. That would bring the Cougar defence corps to seven and, eventually, mean that two defencemen at least will play their hockey elsewhere for the balance of the season. If Agar keeps an extra player, it is likely he will elect to go with five defencemen and nine forwards.

And that could mean another cut, the Cougars currently having 10 forwards. It could be a changed team when it returns from the seven-game road trip to play Portland here the afternoon of Dec. 26.

But there is a job to be done before the Cougars head for the Prairies, and that is taking care of Winnipeg Warriors at Memorial Arena tonight.

THREE TO BEAT

Agar feels that the Warriors, Seattle Totems and Spokane Comets are special targets, believing that they are the clubs the Cougars have the best chance of beating out in the scramble for playoff positions.

"We're not just shooting for the playoffs," he says. "We want to finish on the front end if we can but those are the clubs we have to beat out before we can think of anything higher."

Cougars will be at full strength for the first time in several games. Defenceman Wayne North reported yesterday that his injured ankle appears to have completely healed and George Ford, who will be wearing a mask to protect the injury, probably won't be handicapped by a broken bone in his jaw.

"It won't take much to put us right back in this race," Agar pointed out. "We're only five points out of fourth place and we have games in hand on every club except Portland."

A win tonight would give the Cougars a tie for sixth place and even three wins on the road trip would leave them right in the thick of things with a good January schedule coming up.

Cougars Scoring with Best

There are 31 players in the Western Hockey League with 17 or more points and Gerry Goyer leads the Cougars with 16 but it isn't a failure to score goals which has been costly to the Victoria club this season.

Figures, of course, do often distort but they do show that the Cougars are averaging more goals per game than every club except Calgary.

Stampeders and Seattle Totems. And the difference between the Totems and the Cougars is slight.

New York Gets $96,500,000 From Billion-Dollar Season

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The first $1,000,000,000 handle in the history of pari-mutuel betting in New York state produced a record $96,500,000 in state taxes this year.

State revenues on betting at three thoroughbred and eight harness tracks were $6,500,000 higher than the record set last year.

The betting handle included $531,528,210 at thoroughbred tracks and $505,663,411 at harness tracks. This compared with $479,020,580 and $488,860,700 in 1959.

In addition to wagering records, tracks set an attendance record of 13,355,529. The previous mark was 12,576,181 last year. Fans wagered a total of $1,307,191,621, compared with $967,881,280 last year.

Hunter success on Vancouver Island during the just-passed season was up over last year, but hunters are still not killing enough deer, according to regional game biologist John Bandy.

"The upswing of hunter success is attributable to the high abundance of deer in the bush. . . . It is important that enough deer be taken to prevent ranges from being overused," he said.

"If one is going to make an error in overshooting or undershooting, it is more important to make it on the side of overshooting because of the ability of a healthy population to increase in one or two years. If the range is damaged by overpopulation (caused by undershooting), the detrimental effect may be permanent, or at least cover a five- to 10-year period," he explained.

During the any-sex seasons on the island this year and in 1959, organized road checks showed that at Northwest Bay, 329 deer were shot this year for a hunter success of 33.3 per cent, compared to 238 deer during antlerless season in 1959 for a hunter success of 26.12 per cent.

At Courtenay this year 215 deer were shot for hunter success of 29.09 per cent, compared with 135 for success of 24.95 per cent last year; at Campbell River 276 deer for success of 19.26 per cent, compared with 300 deer for success of 17.99 per cent last year; at Copper Canyon 172 deer for hunter success of 23.65 per cent, compared with 32 deer at a Cowichan Lake check in 1959, for 10.85 per cent success.

At a Colwood check during last weekend antlerless season 80 deer were checked in for success of 15.66 per cent, compared to 89 deer at a Portage Inlet check last year for 12.99 hunter success.

Victoria Fish and Game Club members had a big year for heavyweight deer and Glen Twells' 189-pounder, shot at the opening of the season near Bear Creek wins him the McIlwaine trophy and a gold button.

Dick Polson also wins a gold button for his 182-pounder shot in the Cowichan area.

Silver buttons were won by Bill Beveridge, 172½ pounds; George Vickery, 172; John Stearn, 170; Tom Bradley, 165, and Gary Coutts, 160. Bronze buttons were won by Roy Storey, 158; Harold Piton, 158; Eric Hiberson, 156; Bert Thomas, 152; Charlie Hamilton, 149; Bill Walton, 148; Ronny Mottershead, 148; Stuart McInnes, 148; Al Mottershead, 146; Brian Roberts, 144; Ken Johnson, 143; Denis Gardner, 142½; D. J. Beaulac, 141, and Charles P. Fraser, 140.

Big event for shooters this weekend will be the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association's big turkey shoot Saturday and Sunday at Goldstream, with classification shoots for everyone.

Everyone is welcome and there will be the usual "porkie shoots" and the wheel for those who can't actually shoot.

About Fishing

On the fishing scene, the Victoria-Oak Bay-Sidney waterfront is the big news with winter springs as plentiful as during any winter within recent memory.

Turkey Point breakwater is really paying off. Fishermen who have had to pull their boats out at the end of the summer in past years, still have them in the protected water and are getting in their first winter spring fishing.

Jerry Ham landed a 12-pounder and a 22-pounder off Pedder Bay, near the kelp at Bentick Island, on Sunday, using a Minnow-Tearer, dodger and 16 ounces of weight. Eddie DeCosta landed a 16-pounder at the mouth of Esquimalt harbor, where some other fine catches have been reported. Stan McCarthy landed a 14½-pounder and a 22½-pounder close to the kelp at Macaulay Point using large strip-teaser, 12 ounces of weight and 50 feet of line.

At Oak Bay, where the most springs have been reported, Roy Campbell and Charlie Guiguet shared honors for two lunkers approaching 30 pounds. Scotty Graham got a couple in the 12-pound class and Dave Beulah and Bob Faith have recorded good catches.

Jim Giffert reports Saanich Inlet has not been fished very intensely, but the bluebacks and jacksprings are still around and there is a fair amount of bait in the Inlet. The blues are still hitting at Crofton and Bucky Kennett reports a small planer, and pearl wobbler is picking up the 15 to 18 inches.

There is also good blueback fishing around the Five Fingers at Nanaimo.

England Regaining Former Eminence In Football World

LONDON (Special) — England's "new-look" international side lived up to expectations against Wales with a smashing 5-1 victory that marked the rising fortunes of the much maligned national eleven. It was England's biggest victory over Wales in 31 years, its fourth straight this season and clinched at least a tie for home international honors.

With each appearance the new England club looks faster, slicker and more confident. And the 23 goals to its credit in the four matches must be a tonic to the selectors who have struggled to find scoring punch with dozens of forward switches.

Jimmy Greaves, the slick Chelsea opportunist who has hit brilliant form this season, found the mark twice to step another rung up the ladder to fame. Several days later, Greaves became the youngest player in football history to score a century of league goals.

The quick inside-forward, who doesn't turn 21 until Feb. 20, scored a hat-trick against Manchester City to hit the 100-goal mark after only three years and three months in football's big time. He achieved the feat in 133 games and accounted for 38 per cent of Chelsea's 261 league goals in that number of matches.

England's brisk performance, Greaves' scoring flare and the normal interest of the F.A. cup all helped to take some of the sting away from the bitter player dispute that will undoubtedly reach a climax this month (December).

As League officials worked feverishly to find an answer to the players' strike threat, several league clubs were putting up their own proposals to avert a catastrophic showdown. Bristol Rovers, struggling at the bottom of the second division suggested clubs and players should be free to arrange their own wage terms and a player free to change clubs when his contract expired.

Rovers also proposed a "pyramid plan" for a complete reorganization of the football league into an 18-club premier division, two first divisions, three second divisions and five third divisions—all but the premier league being set up on a regional basis.

'Little' Clubs Being Cut Down

Scores of England's "little" clubs with dreams of becoming Football Association Cup giant-killers have already been cut down to size in the first two rounds, and the third-round draw, in which the 44 first and second division teams make their first appearance, is hardly comforting to the 20 survivors from the two lower divisions and hundreds of non-league sides.

ONLY THREE SURE

Only three clubs from the third and fourth divisions are guaranteed passage into the fourth round and a number of others face almost hopeless tasks on the grounds of football giants. Even the one non-league survivor, unbeaten Oxford United of the strong Southern League, seems out of luck. It must travel to Leicester for a match with the first-division side.

There will undoubtedly be

Rote Signed By Argonauts

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Thursday that quarterback Tobin Rote has agreed to play next season with the Big Four Football club.

Rote, who threw a record 38 touchdown passes to pace the Argonauts to the 1960 Big Four title, had indicated earlier he expected to return for the 1961 season.

The 32-year-old former National Football League veteran came to Toronto this year after 11 years with Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions.

penalty call. His suspension was one of two announced by BCAHA president Ivan Temple. Paul Parnell of Pattersons got the other, a two-game suspension for using abusive language to a referee then skating off the ice instead of to the penalty box.

MEANT AS LESSON

"The fans come to see hockey, not fighting and arguing," Temple said in announcing the suspensions. "I hope this will teach players they can't abuse the referees and get away with it."

More local minor hockey news will likely be made here Sunday, when delegates gather for the annual Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey Association general meeting at 1:30 p.m. at the Pacific Club.

Tentative plans call for scheduling a game between the winner of Victoria and Nanaimo and the lower mainland champions for the coast junior hockey championship. Winner there would move on to play the interior winner for the B.C. title.

About 50 delegates, including 27 from the mainland, are expected to attend the meeting.

PRIMO CARNERA

Primo Took Up Wrestling To Make an Honest Living

NEW YORK (UPI) — Will the current Washington investigation of ring racketeers disclose anything so sordid and ruthless as the mob-controlled saga of Primo Carnera?

Carnera is the imported Italian giant who campaigned in the United States from 1930 to 1936 under direct supervision of mobsters from the "roaring 20s," as he won and lost the world heavyweight championship.

BANKRUPT CHAMPION
They apparently fixed most of his fights and robbed him of practically all his ring earnings. A month after he won the title on a much-discussed sixth-round knockout over Jack Sharkey in 1933, the gullible giant filed a bankruptcy suit.

He returned to Europe in 1936, broke and temporarily paralyzed in his right leg, after having lost the title in 1934 to the late Max Baer, who floored him 12 times before knocking him out in the 11th round.

During the nearly seven years in the United States, the Italian man-mountain hammered out an estimated $2-750,000 with his huge fists. He made rich men out of some of the mobsters who controlled him.

A FINE CREW
The principal "boys" who guided Carnera's great American campaign were Owney Madden and the late Bill Duffy, who had interests in bootlegging, taverns and labor. Each had spent time behind bars — not mahogany ones. Madden and Duffy were assisted in their Carnera enterprise by such characters as the late "Mad Dog" Vincent Coll, the late Big Frenchy Demange and the late Boo Boo Hoff of Philadelphia.

A few legitimately honest fighters were sprinkled through Carnera's list of opponents. However, most of his adversaries were either bums or men who had been fixed by the "green" or threat of the gun.

Early in his American career, Primo was striding along the victory path in his "satchel feet" with 14 straight knockouts to his credit, when he encountered one Leon (Bombo) Chevalier at Oakland, Calif.

Apparently the directors of Carnera Inc. had mistaken Chevalier for a bum. And Bombo was having a dandy time belting Big Primo around the ring. Midway through the fight, Bombo's eyes began to smart. He could hardly see.

And one of his handlers tossed in the towel. It was a Carnera kayo victory in the sixth round. One of Bombo's seconds had been "fixed" — just for cheap insurance.

An investigation that followed accomplished practically nothing.

THE PERSUADER

Little more than a month before the Oakland incident, an

Basilio Moved Up When He Paid Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carmen Basilio's former managers said Thursday the midweight boxer began getting into championship calibre fights after they started paying a pal of the underworld's Frankie Carbo.

It developed, too, that the managers, John DeJohn and Joseph Netro, each paid thousands of dollars to Gabe Genovese without knowing the other was doing it.

DeJohn and Netro, who lost their managers' licences for paying Genovese, gave the testimony to the Senate's anti-monopoly subcommittee, looking into mobster influences in prize fighting.

DeJohn confirmed previous testimony that he and Netro were able to get together with promoter James D. Norris once money started flowing to Genovese.

Later in the day, Norris, crown said he takes no orders went behind closed doors for questioning about his activities as to controlling power in the now disbanded International Boxing Clubs and about his relations with Carbo.

Norris's lawyer asked for this procedure because he said Norris has a heart ailment and the strain of testifying publicly might bring on an attack.

Subcommittee counsel John G. Bonomi said evidence showed DeJohn paid Genovese $39,334.31 in 1955-58 and that Netro gave Genovese about $25,000 in 1955-58.

On the witness stand Wednesday, Basilio expressed contempt for Carbo, Genovese and other racket figures reputed to have a grip on the ring business.

Basilio, who still hopes to regain the middleweight title, said he takes no orders from Carbo, "nobody tells me what to do."

DeJohn said the boxing business needs a cleansing, and added that "if this sport was cleaned up the way it should have been. I wouldn't be here today."

Netro acknowledged his contributions to Genovese were at least partly because of Genovese's influence.

Syracuse promoter Norman Rothschild told of paying $10,000 to Genovese in 1956. He said it was Genovese's aid in arranging the match in which Basilio won the welterweight title from Johnny Saxton. That donation cost Rothschild a fine of $2,000 at the same time the New York State Athletic Association barred DeJohn and Netro.

Genovese was identified as a native of Naples, Italy, convicted of bookmaking in 1941 and of undercover managing last year. Genovese now is free while the latter case is being appealed.

ONE OF VICTORIA'S GREAT AUTO FIRMS

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

If you are planning the construction of a new bed, for flowers or shrubs, or even vegetables, there is a hard way and an easy way to prepare the ground.

The hard way is to dig it over as deeply as you can, preferably with a digging fork, combing out as you work all the roots of perennial weeds such as couch grass and incorporating plenty of rotted organic material to improve the soil texture. If you do a real thorough job, you can get rid of about 90 per cent of the perennial weeds in this way; the annual weeds are another story. Dormant seeds from the deeper levels are brought to the surface by the digging and soon the new bed is a green carpet of grass, chickweed, shepherd's purse and the like, all of which must be hoed off.

Given reasonably decent soil to start with, the easy way is simply to make the site of the new bed an enormous compost heap. Set up edging boards if necessary to confine the materials to the contours of the new bed, then dump all your leaves, lawn mowings, manure, kitchen wastes and what have you on the surface, as thickly as you can manage. Six months later, rake off the litter and there is your new bed, weed free, nicely riddled with worm holes for drainage and with a lovely loose texture in the top few inches.

I pull this stunt in a limited way whenever I make a new compost heap, siting it on a spot where I plan on planting something, but I have a knowledgeable friend who uses this technique on a really big scale, gradually reclaiming and renovating a large and very neglected garden.

Her principle instrument of reclamation is lawn mowings. As a girl on the farm back in Ontario, she had noticed the freedom from weeds and the excellent condition of the soil in spots where the haystacks had rested in the fields, and she is adapting the idea in a labor-saving method of preparing the sites for her flower and shrub borders. She uses a grass catcher on her lawn mower, dumping all the mowings on the piece of ground to be planted, where they smother all the weeds in a most effective fashion. Even tough old turf can be killed and rotted in this way.

The thicker the mulch and the longer it is left in position, the better the job is done. In due course, the litter is raked off and put to work elsewhere in the garden. There is no need to dig over the bed—this would only bring annual weed seeds to the surface—and perennial flowers or shrubs can be planted directly, without any further preparation.

Except where acid-loving plants are to be set in, I think it pays to scatter a little lime, preferably the pulverized limestone, and rake it in to the top two inches to correct any excess acidity caused by the juices draining from the rotting litter.

It doesn't matter much what kind of litter is used, as long as it is loose enough to permit air to enter. Lawn mowings tend to mat down in time and my friend makes it a point to stir the mulch with her garden rake from time to time to prevent this. Sawdust also will sometimes form a crust, which should be broken up with the fork or rake. Pine needles do a grand job, admitting air freely while shutting off light from germinating weed seeds, although a little extra lime will be needed to correct acidity.

This technique of putting nature's forces to work for you requires some long-term planning, of course. If you develop a sudden yen for a new flower border and want to plant it up right away, there is nothing for it but to prepare the ground the hard way. If you have the patience to wait until, say, next fall before you start planting, there is no reason why that pile of leaves you raked up shouldn't be spread and put to work preparing the site this very weekend.

Eight Years in Cell

Pay Alimony? He Prefers Jail

WOODLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Eight years ago, a judge offered Fred Block a simple choice: "Either pay your wife the money you owe her or go to jail."

Block chose jail and has been there ever since.

He could have paid his wife, Fern, the $750 he owed for alimony and child support. He had enough money then and he has even more today.

But, he reasoned, "I was married to that woman 25 years and I just didn't think she deserved it."

So Block sits in Yolo County Jail playing solitaire and reading detective novels. Every so often, Judge C. C. McDonald calls him into superior court to ask if he's changed his mind.

"No," says Fred, "and I'm never going to."

His grievances go back to 1925, when Fred and Fern were married. The place was Kansas, where Block and his brother operated a 240-acre farm. The groom was 32 years old.

"I waited so long all the good ones got by," he said.

According to his side of the story,

"She never helped me with the farm work. She was always on a diet so I never got enough to eat. And she was always wanting to go dancing."

Block said he began drinking because of these alleged hardships. But no matter the cause, his wife was ready for a divorce shortly after they came to California in 1948.

The courts agreed that his wife should have a divorce, and awarded her alimony and child support for two daughters in an order of August, 1951. Fred went to jail in July 1952 because of his refusal to pay.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

BB—Uncensored, Wild

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Brigitte Bardot's "Life and Loves," by her secretary, Alain Carré, uncensored and wild, will soon be published in North America and should cause as much commotion as the current unauthorized Marilyn Monroe biography.

You can see Bob Hope and Lucille Ball as youngsters in "Sorrowful Jones." Where? On the late show, of course. And compare them in their latest film, "The Facts of Life." They have both "worn" very well.

David Susskind will put his "Life of Evita Peron" on TV, with Vivien Leigh playing Little Eva, he hopes. . . . Deborah Kerr reduced the price of her Pacific Palisades mansion to $200,000 to help pay for her lovely villa in Klosters, Switzerland.

Glenn Ford won't waste much time when he completes "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" at Metro, to march down the aisle with Hope Lange.

Millionaire Donald Crisp celebrated his 55th year as an actor with the role of the caretaker in his recent picture for Walt Disney, "Greyfriars Bobby." Hard to believe that Donald started his screen career as a villain.

Understatement from Ann Blythe, who expects her fourth child this month: "We want and pray for a large family." Husband Dr. James McNulty, brother of Dennis, is an obstetrician.

Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows reduced the overhead by having their office at home in a separate wing of their house in the valley. Jayne has been working on an original movie story to co-star them again. You saw them, perhaps, in "College Confidential."

Gary Cooper is feeling much better since his operation a few months ago, but his doctors would prefer that he cut out all the underwater skin-diving stuff. Gary is currently in London making a picture, but will be back in January for the big friars dinner at which he will be guest of honor.

Princess Maria Poniatowski, daughter of perfume Prince Yves Lanvin, will make her movie debut as the society matron in "The Chapman Report." The princess is a lovely brunette and speaks perfect English.

George Stevens would like to sign up Marlon Brando for the role of Judas, of all characters, in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." And, you know, Marlon just might accept. George is hoping to use all top stars for his $10,000,000 epic. Except for the role of Christ.

Veteran actor Robert Warwick, 81 years old, laughs when you mention the word "retire." "I get at least one TV engagement a month," says Robert. He made his debut on Broadway in 1903 with John Barrymore and Thomas Meighan in the play, "Glad to It," which ran seven weeks, and I was glad of it."

'Those Dirty — They Killed Him'

Trucking Checker Mangled

NEW YORK (AP) — A young man walked to his car yesterday in a quiet residential section of Queens, stepped in, and turned on the ignition.

With a roar, a bomb that had been fixed under the floor shattered the white convertible, smashed the legs and mangled the body of driver Kenneth Feinberg, 26. In a few minutes he was dead.

It was the second automobile bombing in the New York City area in two days. In the first, a bomb exploded a short time before William P. Hillbrant and his wife would have entered their car at their Elizabeth, N.J., home.

Hillbrant had been a key witness in the federal income tax conviction of Harold (The Weasel) Gross last August.

Feinberg worked for the Fox Trucking Company, and his job, as police described it, was to "go around to keep a check on trucks." One police official speculated that Feinberg had discovered something that was meant to stay hidden.

Detective James Leggett said the names of men linked to loan-sharking and crime were discovered in a notebook belonging to the dead man. At least 12 of these were questioned.

When Feinberg's father was brought to identify his son, he staggered, anguish flooded his features, and he cried out:

"Those dirty sons of — They killed him. They killed him."

Detectives said dynamite apparently had been wired to the ignition system.

Timmins Favors Sunday Movies

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — Electors of Timmins returned Mayor Leo Del Villano to office and voted in favor of Sunday movies in Wednesday's municipal balloting.

Pedestrian Injured In Accident

An elderly pedestrian was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital for observation of a head injury yesterday after being struck by a car at Government and Fisgard.

Gin Wee, about 72, employed as a cook at the home of R. R. Wilde, 1039 Beach, suffered a long cut to the back of the head in the accident.

Driver of the car was Maj. L. W. Jannison, 1325 Fairfield.

2,834 Out of Work In Prince George

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The local branch of the Unemployment Insurance Commission reported Thursday the number of persons seeking work increased by 650 in the last month. At the end of November 2,834 persons were looking for jobs.

Kitchen Scraps Blamed For Cholera Among Hogs

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal agriculture department yesterday warned farmers against feeding kitchen scraps to their hogs. The warning was issued in the wake of new outbreaks of hog cholera in eastern Ontario and southwestern Quebec.

The latest count showed 16 infected premises—10 of them in Quebec—and 8,671 hogs destroyed.

U.S. General Tells Canada:

Non-Nuclear Bomarc 'Downgraded' Weapon

McGUIRE AIR BASE, N.J. (CP) — The vice-commander of the U.S. Air Defence Command yesterday warned Canadian reporters on a tour of this fully operational squadron manned with 56 nuclear clear-tipped Bomarc-A missiles, the predecessor to the longer-range Bomarc-B. The air force plans to add 14 Bomarc-B weapons to this squadron when the new missiles become available.

Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, discussing Bomarc operations with reporters, said if Canada does not store warheads in peacetime, "our operations would be weakened to the extent of the time it would take to get the warheads up into Canada in the event of an emergency."

"I would imagine," he added, "that Canada would want these warheads if an emergency occurred."

Divorce Reform Balked

OTTAWA (UPI) — The House of Commons last night "talked out" and took no action on a CCF member's bill to provide a wholesale reform of Canada's divorce laws.

The proposed legislation, a private member's bill introduced by Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) would have broadened the grounds for divorce and freed Parliament of the responsibility of dissolving Quebec and Newfoundland marriages.

The one-day divorce debate ended when the House adjourned without a vote being taken.

NEW BLOCKADE

There was only a slight chance the divorce bill would come up again for discussion or action later this session. There was an indication the CCF blockade of divorce bills would be resumed.

The proposed legislation would have broadened the grounds for divorce to include cruelty, desertion, habitual drunkenness or narcotics addiction, attempted murder of spouse and incurable insanity. It would have offered — but not imposed — the new law as a replacement for existing divorce statutes in eight provinces where adultery is the only grounds.

Robert McCleave (PC — Halifax), chairman of the Commons divorce bills committee, agreed that after studying 1,200 to 1,400 parliamentary divorce cases "one has to honestly concede that the elements of collusion and convenience have entered into them."

But he stressed that by enlarging the grounds for divorce the national divorce rate would be much higher, although he said most of the bill was good.

Mr. Peters, one of two CCF MPs who blocked hundreds of parliamentary divorce bills until the last days of the last session to emphasize the problem of parliamentary divorce, also said the bill would provide for a Canadian domicile, making it easier for divorces to be obtained regardless of the province of the respondent.

When the bill, patterned after recent British and Australian legislation, came up for second reading — approval in principle — yesterday, it met with opposition from government and Liberal members who said it would make divorces too easy to obtain and destroy the fabric of family life.

A. deB. McPhillips (PC — Victoria) said the legislation might "establish in Canada a sort of second Reno. In other words, you can get your divorce wherever you want to. You can shop around and find the cheapest spot."

New Explosion

"Barometer Rising," novel by Canadian author Hugh MacLennan dealing with the 1917 Halifax explosion, is causing another one in Manitoba education circles, which found the book was approved reading in provincial schools. Delegates at a trustees convention described the book as profane and vulgar, and voted unanimously to ask education department to remove the novel from all classrooms and school libraries.

Long-Time Blacksmith Dies at 81

McQueen Russell Todd, 81, 1819 Stanley, who was a blacksmith here from 1904 until his retirement in 1952 died Tuesday at his home.

Surviving are the widow, Helen, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Don Christian of Victoria; three sons, John W. Todd of Winnipeg, M. Russell Todd of Portland, Ore., and George Todd of Toronto; five grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Maisie Noble and Mrs. W. White of Victoria; and one brother, George Todd of Victoria.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Hecklers, their blockades ended by police, turned to telephone threats, vandalism and economic reprisals to whittle attendance down to 15 at an integrated school yesterday.

For the first time since integration began on Nov. 14, there were no hecklers around William Frantz Elementary School. But their efforts were felt nevertheless.

ONLY 14 SHOW

Only 14 white children showed up to attend classes with Ruby Nell Bridges, the lone Negro girl going to the school. It was five less than yesterday and a drop of nine in two days.

Police manned their barricades a block away from the school in all directions, but no crowds congregated. A handful of white persons sat on a front porch across the school, but were warned by police that if they started jeering, they would be ejected.

During the night, rocks sailed through windows of white families whose children are attending Frantz and their telephones rang incessantly. When they answered, they heard mumbled threats and obscenities.

Lower Their Prices

Angry Tars Draw Bead On Merchants

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Victoria merchants were yesterday described as "unfriendly to the navy" for their criticism of Christmas present buying abroad by members of the RCN who have recently been on service in foreign waters.

Chief annoyance of the merchants' attitude was expressed by navy wives. They all expressed the view that their husbands had every right to buy presents where they wanted.

AMASSED GIFTS

The merchants' objections followed the return of three RCN vessels from a lengthy cruise during which the crews had amassed gifts for their families from foreign sources, and thus had deprived the local merchants of their Christmas shopping money.

One navy wife said that the Victoria merchants had only themselves to blame. "They should bring down their prices."

BLACK EYE

Another said "Only three of the 18 ships based at Esquimalt were involved in the foreign purchases, but the whole navy is getting a black eye by the merchants' criticism. Every year we spend about $300 in Victoria stores at Christmas."

"Canadian naval families spend most of their money in Victoria and only a very small percentage is spent outside the city," said another.

"What right has anyone to declare where we should spend our money," said another wife. "We pay income tax on our earnings just like anyone else."

ROUGH TREATMENT

"My husband works on a government ship although he is not in the navy," said another complainant, "but we get the same rough treatment in this city as the navy people do."

"This is an anti-services city. The only time men in uniform are welcome here is in time of war, but as soon as the flag waving is over, the local people have no time for us."

Another wife agreed, although she added "Halifax is a cold town too, and every bit as bad."

NO DELINQUENCY?

"It is like everything else the navy does," said another wife. "We never do anything worth while. If a navy man gets into trouble he gets headlines in the papers. Is it always the man in uniform who is made the scapegoat. Is there no delinquency among civilian youngsters as well?"

"I would like to know how the merchants in this town would fare if the navy was uprooted from Esquimalt," was another reply.

A navy petty officer said: "I was going to buy a new car here in the spring, but if that is the way the local merchants feel about us, I am going over to buy it in Vancouver, and to heck with them."

ONE-SIDED

"The Colonist article yesterday was one-sided and it smelled," said another navy man who had been on one of the cruising ships. "When we were at sea we had only $20 a week of spending money, the rest was sent to our wives at home and spent in Victoria. That applied to the 45 married men of our crew of 48."

He added that he had purchased a watch for his wife at $21. "If the local merchants could match it for value I would not have bought it, but they can't. Their prices are far too high."

BLAME NAVY

"It is the same thing every time things go wrong—they blame the navy," said a navy wife married for 18 years. "We are not in the same class as civilians, and it was the same thing when we were in Halifax, only worse. The merchants should realize that navy men don't go willingly on these trips to leave their wives and kids—they just have to go, and I don't see anything wrong in their bringing us back some gifts."

"More power to the men that buy gifts—if they have any money left after trying to keep up with the cost of living in Victoria," wrote another indignant navy wife. "The merchants of Victoria should be thankful to have the navy around spending money here when there is so much unemployment."

Teachers' Pay Arbitration On Monday

Arbitration of a dispute over teachers salaries in Greater Victoria is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the school board office at Craigdarroch Castle. Local teachers are seeking increases averaging 13 per cent and trustees claim salaries should remain at present level.

Judy Goes Home

Sixteen-year-old Judy Westwood, once listed in serious condition after being thrown from a horse Nov. 6, went home yesterday from Royal Jubilee Hospital.

She doesn't remember the accident itself, still likes horses and has expressed a desire to go riding again. "She's coming along fine," said her mother, Mrs. William Westwood, 2633 Cadboro Bay. "She's home in time for Christmas and we're all real happy about it."

Statue Head Still Missing

City police report no success so far in their search for the head from the bust of Queen Elizabeth, broken off by vandals in Beacon Park Tuesday night.

The bust, once stolen bodily in a prank, has twice been damaged by vandals since being placed in the park.

Scurrah Will Hear Land Reserve Plan

A plan to reserve land on the Cathedral Hill site, near the new provincial courthouse, will be put to Mayor Percy Scurrah Tuesday afternoon.

A committee appointed at a recent meeting of Victoria Symphony Society, the Gilbert and Sullivan Society and Victoria Little Theatre will ask Mayor Scurrah and the provincial government to acquire all property bounded by Courtney, Blanshard, Quadra and Broughton Streets, and property across the road on Broughton.

The proposal arose out of a suggestion by Mr. Barra-clough that the Royal Theatre should be purchased instead of the city building an auditorium and the area surrounding the theatre built on to house arts and crafts centres. The meeting of members of the three groups was told that the value of the property had increased about $200,000 in three years and could be expected to increase in value still more.

In addition, city planner Roderick Clack warned that commercial development could be expected in the area within a year.

Bright Lights for Christmas

Plans for lighting the 100-foot Government House Christmas tree, in background, are discussed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Len Butterworth, head gardener. The tree, visible in many sections of Victoria, will be lighted Dec. 15. (Colonist photo.)

Chiefs, Cabinet

'Friendship' Feast Theme

B.C. cabinet ministers, Indian chiefs and councilmen from bands on southern Vancouver Island will attend a "friendship feast" at Strawberry Vale community hall at 8 p.m. today.

Chief John Albany, of the host Songhees band, said yesterday the banquet was arranged to let government and Indian leaders become better acquainted.

NATIVE DISHES

Over tables groaning with seafood delicacies, many of them traditional native dishes, some 150 guests will discuss anything but politics—a subject that has been declared taboo. There will be no formal speeches and the banquet will wind up with a display of ceremonial Indian dances.

Beneath the "strictly-for-enjoyment" tone of proceedings is the serious purpose of bringing members of Indian bands closer to the government.

Guest Stars May Perform At University

Guest artists who appear with Victoria Symphony Orchestra may also perform at Victoria University in lunch hour concerts sponsored by the university's Fine Arts Club.

Symphony society president Jack Barraclough said last night music appreciation groups have also been formed at Victoria High School and Central Junior High School and both he and conductor Hans Gruber will address meetings of the groups. "We will also try to take several members of the orchestra with us to give demonstrations to the students," he said.

Bonner Hints 2 a.m. For New Year Parties

Attorney-General Robert Bonner yesterday hinted that local law enforcement agencies should allow public dances and parties to continue to 2 a.m. on Sunday, Jan. 1. "The celebration of New Year's Eve, on Saturday, Dec. 31, was a matter for local police administration, he said. "However, the attorney-general's department does not expect to receive complaints about public parties conducted up to 2 a.m. Jan. 1," he said. "Normally such functions must cease on Saturday at midnight."

Small Oak Bay Vote

Three Returned But Without Pay

Oak Bay voters yesterday returned three incumbents to council and soundly defeated a referendum proposing that reeve and councillors be paid.

Fred Hawes, who commences his eighth year on council, topped the pole with 2,021 votes. He was followed by John Watts, first elected in the June, 1958, byelection with 1,875 votes, and another council veteran Fred Robinson, with 1,421 votes.

Fourth candidate in the race for three council seats was Harry Gregson, who polled 1,272.

Only 2,327 of the 8,048 eligible voters cast ballots in yesterday's election. The 23 per cent turnout was a little better than average for a non-reveeship contest.

The referendum's defeat by a 1,394-901 vote was a disappointment to some councillors.

Reeve George Murdoch, who was not seeking election, but campaigned against the pay referendum, said the vote was held to let the people make their decision—"and they've made it."

Coun. Robinson termed the referendum "a little disappointing. I would have hoped the people would think a little more of the efforts made by council members on their behalf."

School-Frills Foe Defeats Chairman

Newcomer Lewis Harvey soundly defeated school board chairman James D. Helps in the first election for school trustee ever held in the unorganized district of North Saanich.

The margin of 159 votes represented a majority for Mr. Harvey in four out of five polls and his lead was never seriously challenged at any time.

He opposed Mr. Helps on the grounds that the present board had broken faith with voters in the district by including non-essential items in the controversial and three-defeated $784,000 school building by-law.

Mr. Harvey said last night he favored simpler schools and would suggest that the board adopt some of the policies suggested in a brief presented by Deep Cove Ratepayers Association to the Chant-royal commission on education last spring.

PARKSVILLE—Sam Gough

was chosen by members of Parksville Fish and Game Club as "member of the year" and was awarded the Alex Young Memorial Trophy in a presentation made by Mrs. Dave Morgan of Cumberland, sister of the late Mr. Young.

The Rushton Memorial Trophy for the largest fish caught by a game club member was won by James Keddie, and the Parksville Fish and Game Club Trophy for the largest deer shot by a member was awarded to Robert "Panner" Thompson.

Todd, Worthington Stay In Office

Former reeve Joseph Casey led all the way last night in the Saanich election to take the seat left vacant in October by the resignation of long-time councillor George Austin.

The two incumbent councillors, Harold Todd and Ainslie Worthington retained their seats despite a late surge by newcomer Robert Chard, a lawyer.

LAGGED BEHIND

With 10 polls reported in, Chard lagged behind Todd and Worthington by some 300 votes, but a block of 400 votes given to him in Cadboro Bay, where he lives, brought him to within just over 50 votes of the two incumbents.

In the next poll, Gordon Head, he drew ahead of Coun. Todd by 21 votes, but the final poll, at St. Luke's Church hall, left him 31 votes behind.

VOTE LEAD

Mr. Casey, reeve of Saanich for six years, and a councillor for three terms, gained an 11-vote lead in the first poll to report and steadily drew away from the other 11 candidates as the results from the remaining 12 polls were recorded.

Voting dropped slightly from last year with only about 22 per cent of the eligible voters casting ballots. The amount last year was 24 per cent.

ALL RATEPAYERS

Coun. Casey thanked the electors who had returned him to office. "I will endeavor to serve the interests of ALL ratepayers of the municipality," he said.

Coun. Todd: "It was tough and go for a while, but naturally I am pleased to be elected for another term and to think that I can merit the voters' confidence for the next two years."

Coun. Worthington: "I hope I can serve the public well for another term. I am very pleased to see the confidence of the people."

THREE-CORNERED

George Curran won the three-cornered fight to represent Saanich on School District 61 board of trustees. He polled 1,629 votes to David Nightingale's 1,508, and 1,187 polled by Richard Hilton.

Mr. Nightingale led in the early polls, but Mr. Curran whittled down his lead and passed him as the results came in from the rest of the municipality.

Nip-and-Tuck Race

Lee Elected Reeve In Central Saanich

In a nip-and-tuck battle that brought out 53 per cent of the voters to the Central Saanich polls yesterday, R. G. Lee edged out Ray Lamont by a scant 84 votes in the battle for the reeveship.

Three new councillors will be sworn in for two-year terms. Leading this group was a long-time resident of the area, Tom Michell, with a total of 658 votes, followed by A. K. Hemstreet with 484 and Bert Vickers, 429. The incumbent, Mrs. Gladys Ronson, lost to Mr. Vickers by 18 votes.

The three-way race for a one-year term on council was taken by incumbent Frank Grimshaw with 365 votes. He was trailed by Kelly Troop, 253, and Jack Southern, 176.

CONFIDENT

Reeve-elect Lee said that "succeeding Rupert Brown as reeve means assuming a heavy burden of responsibility, but I am confident that both old and new councillors will work with me for the betterment of our municipality."

Mr. Lamont wished every success to the new council and said he would continue to take an active part in community affairs. He said he was grateful for the support he had received from ratepayers during his nine years on council.

Mrs. Ronson was philosophical after losing by 18 votes. She said with a smile: "Somebody had to lose."

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Senior High School auditorium resounded with sparkling melody Wednesday night with the presentation of Nicola's hilarious comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

It was an abridged version presented by the Canadian Opera Company and received with enthusiasm by the audience.

Little Bit of Old Rome Unearthed in Victoria

Capital Notebook By Peter Bruton

COLLECTOR'S ITEM: An old coin, minted in Rome in the year 141 AD, was literally unearthed by Les Moutrey in his front garden the other day. Provincial mines department analysts determined that the coin was made of copper, zinc and lead and the head on the piece was identified as that of Empress Faustina.

Coin experts said the item wasn't very valuable and had probably been dropped by a collector some time ago.

FROM BEDS TO WORDS: President of the Community Welfare Council, Dr. E. N. Boettcher, reports that he should soon be able to name the successful appointee to the post of executive director.

Health Minister Eric Martin took time out to deny the fact yesterday that so much of government business had to be kept under wraps. The press room annex at the Empress for the 51st Western Forestry Conference is the old office of the late Gordon Sloan when he was forestry adviser to the provincial government.

ATTEMPTED SILENCER: Officials of the Victoria branch, B.C. Government Employees' Association, have warned two of their members to stop making press statements and writing letters to the newspapers or else get out of the association.

The two members involved are John Wood and Mrs. Florence Riley who are on the staff of CCF leader Robert Strachan but are paid by the government.

Mr. Wood has been a member of the association for the past eight years and is a former branch president of New Den-

LOGGERS MEET: It was like old home week for many ex-Victorians who are among the 500 delegates attending the 51st Western Forestry Conference here. President is Hugh Hodgins, now vice-president of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., who is accompanied by his wife, Heggie.

Another former city man is Bert Gayle, now of Vancouver. ... Charlie Cowan, who remembers when former B.C. chief forester C. D. Orchard was a boy fresh out of New Brunswick and who has now retired as head of the Washington Forest Protection Association, is also here. ... So is former B.C. Power Commission PRO-Jim McKeachie.

JUNGLE JOKES: Congo jokes are a dime a dozen these days. For example ... Kasavubu was flying home from the United Nations via Congolese Jungle Airways and the stewardess brought him the menu. Kasavubu noted that Baked Briton was on for $2.50, Grilled American was $2.50 and Boiled Beatnik was $5.

Kasavubu wanted to know why the difference in price between the first two dishes and Boiled Beatnik. Replied the stewardess: "Have you ever tried to clean one of them things?" ... Or, as Lumumba said to Mobutu: "Diefenbaker! That's a funny name."

KITE FLYER: According to Premier Bennett, he's waiting for an expression of public opinion before deciding whether his new minister without portfolio, Mrs. Buda Brown, should get a salary rather than just expenses.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers,

Dear Ann Landers: I just put down another magazine article on "How to Hold Your Husband." I wish someone would write an article on "How to Lose Him."

My little boy in long pants is irresponsible, short-tempered, egocentric and constantly threatens to leave me. Unfortunately, he never does. I've even offered to pack for him.

All the magazine articles say a wife should soothe her husband's shattered nerves and bolster his sagging ego by telling him how wonderful he is. How can you tell a man he's home-stoned, screams, swears, and passes out before he gets his shoes off? The next morning he can't remember what he did with the car. This is wonderful!

I've heard it said that trouble builds character. Well, I've had so much trouble in my life that character is sticking out all over. What I need is a vacation from him. What do you suggest, Ann Landers?

MARYANNA.

Dear Maryanna: A vacation from him.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you remember me. I signed my letter One Of Nine Children.

I wanted you to tell us what to do about an 80-year-old father who has a pension cheque. Your answer was a lot of high-sounding philosophy but no advice. Remember, I told you my five sisters married pretty well and could afford to take the old man in, but they don't want to be bothered.

The rest of us have a hard time paying our bills. Pa's pension is only $68 a month, but it would help some. Don't you think the one who takes him in should get his pension cheque, too?

Please don't talk so fancy. Let's have some plain language.—ONE OF NINE.

Dear One: If it's plain language you're looking for you came to the right place. You nine kids are a disgrace to the human race. It's strange how one father can take care of nine kids when they're young—but nine kids can't take care of one father when he's old.

If none of you is willing to take your dad in, then put him in a nursing home. He'd probably be happier there than with children who don't want him.

You sound like such dolls you'll probably need the poor guy's pension cheque to cover the cost of his care in a home—in which case go ahead and use it. If this isn't plain enough, please send me your name and address. I'll use my own stamp.

Dear Ann: Our son is brilliant but he deliberately did poorly on a scholarship examination because he did not wish to go to a certain college. His dad wanted him to go for sentimental reasons. Our son did well on the college boards and now my husband is forcing the boy to attend the school of his choice even though the boy made it clear that he hates it.

Frankly I don't know who's right. My husband says it's time the boy was forced to do something constructive as a matter of discipline. What do you say?—MRS. M. D.

Dear Mrs. M. D.: Insisting that your son attend a school he "hates" is a mistake. You can force him to drag his body there, but his mind will be closed. Before you throw out more money get the objective advice of a professor.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What to Expect from Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Young newlyweds pictured at their wedding reception following their marriage in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stewart Baird. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Carol Barton, daughter of Mrs. W. Trace, 3610 Doncaster Drive. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Baird, 518 Sumas Street. Mr. and Mrs. Baird are now living at 1125 Hillside Avenue.—(L. H. Draper photo.)

Tips for Parents

By HELEN R. HEWSON

Several inquiries have come in about teaching children to be responsible and reliable. What is the purpose of such teaching?

It goes beyond the task of the moment, the dishwashing and the tidying up, to developing a feeling of satisfaction, of achievement as the child learns to look after himself and make some contribution to the group.

Children have lessons in responsible behavior long before they know what the word means.

The baby or toddler who is cared for tenderly and carefully learns that looking after others is a part of growing up.

In a family where children are cherished, brothers and sisters have a strong feeling of being able to rely on each other. There will still be scraps and disagreements, but the underlying feeling of trust and confidence is stronger than surface differences.

The parents' attitude to family problems is also a help in developing a responsible approach to life.

If the child hears, "Now let's see what we can do about this. I think we can manage if we try," when difficulties or disappointments are met, if the child is accustomed to a positive family approach to a situation, he begins to feel that something can be done and that he can help.

Well Known Couturier Deplores Haggard, Cheese-Stick Women

By ROSEMARY BOXER

ROME. Stop dieting gals! Had dinner this week at the French Embassy and listened in amusement to a group of sophisticated Frenchmen discuss women. The subject was women who diet. And, oh, how they hate women who diet.

According to this group, all diets should be abolished. Women should eat what they like and grow plump.

Jean Desses, the well-known French couturier, was one of the celebrated guests. He claims the fashionable women of the world have secretly rebelled, are getting plumper and plumper each year.

For example, Princess Grace of Monaco, Elizabeth Taylor, Zsa Zsa Gabor are pleasantly rounded these days. They know their public likes to see flesh on their bones. It's great for the couturiers.

"Give me a rounded figure every time... a woman with curves, with a shape... not these haggard, cheese-stick women. It's agony trying to do anything for them."

PRETTY STRANGE

This seemed a pretty strange remark to come from Mr. Desses, underscored as each time I've seen his collection in Paris, his models were tubular thin... all bone and no flesh.

As though he were reading my mind, he muttered, "My models, I wish I could get rid of them. Cheesesticks! But I must go along with the trade, and the trend is for tall, lanky, fleshless bodies. If they all left, while I was in Rome, I'd replace them with short, rounded figures."

"How could you," I exclaimed, "women like to see clothes modelled by angular clothes horses, I doubt if you'd sell as many models as you do."

"I'd sell more, people would see what they really looked like. Most women are short and plump, and these are the ones I want to design for," he said.

What does this mean in actual dimensions? It means that women have stopped worrying about a 24-inch waist and are now quite happy with a 26 or 28-inch waist. It means an end to those dreadful lemon juice and dry toast diets.

At this point in the conversation I was passed a thick whipped cream dessert, and out of habit I declined.

"Do try a little," said our host.

Why not! This is the beginning of a new plump era. And it was the first dessert I've really enjoyed for years!

And so, gals, I repeat... if you want to be a success with a Frenchman... don't diet!

FORM-FITTING

"They're ruinous to a figure. Women should wear form-fitting clothes that reveal a natural lovely silhouette," continued Mr. Desses.

"And very light foundation garments," interrupted Pierre Brasseur, the French actor.

"I don't know why American women, and Canadians are the same, why they wear such heavy undergarments. Most of these women look as though they were wearing a suit of armor."

What's Cooking

By LOUISE MOORE

Reminiscing about delectable gourmet deals, we recalled one in New York a few years ago which had everything—Long Island ducking with orange sauce served with wild rice, red currant jelly, brussels sprouts, a salad macedoine which combined artichoke bottoms and celery knobs, green peas and beets with a vinaigrette dressing.

The dessert was an exquisite lime meringue pie. So let's have just such a dinner this coming Sunday.

ROAST DUCK WITH ORANGE SAUCE

A four-pound duck is a good buy for a family of two. Then there is enough for one hot meal and pickins for the second. For a larger number a five or six-pound bird is a good choice.

To fix the duck: Remove giblets from cavity and use them for making the gravy.

'Honey for Breakfast' Campaign Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian honey producers will launch a "honey for breakfast" campaign next April in attempts to sell more of their product, it was announced at the opening here Thursday of the Canadian Beekeepers' Council annual meeting.

READ LABEL

When ironing things at home, be sure of the material, especially the miracle fibres. Read the label and set your iron for the fibre with the lowest melting point.

See that the inside of the bird is thoroughly clean. Rub inside with 1 tsp. salt.

Stuff the duck lightly, including the neck. A savory bread stuffing with prunes, apples and celery makes a delicious dressing. Some use fruit alone and it's mighty good, too.

Dried prunes cut up, diced oranges, apricots, apples and walnuts make a delicious combination.

Truss and place in shallow roasting pan. Roast in moderate oven 325 F. for 2 to 2½ hours for a five to six-pound duck or until skin is crisp and brown and the meat tender.

To make the sauce, pour off as much fat as possible from the pan and toss in four finely chopped shallots, or two or three green onions minus green tops. Cook for a moment or two and add a dash of pepper and ¼ cup orange juice. Stir to get all brown bits from bottom of pan. Thicken a little if you wish. Serve in a gravy boat.

Some like to baste the duck with orange juice during the roast—it's a matter of taste.

LIME PIE

Stir 7 level tbsp. cornstarch, 1½ cups sugar and a dash salt. Dump into the top of double boiler.

Stir in 2 cups boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Cook until smooth.

Then cook over direct heat stirring constantly until thickened and creamy smooth. Be careful it does not stick to pot. Cook until no taste of starch remains. Return to lower part of double boiler and carefully stir in the well-beaten yolks of five eggs, the grated rind of two lemons and ½ cup unstrained lime juice.

Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Add a few drops of green food coloring to intensify the lime color. Cool but do not chill.

Pour into a nine-inch baked pie shell. Beat the five egg whites with ¼ tsp. salt until stiff. Gradually beat in 8 to 10 tbsp. fine sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Spread roughly over top of cooled filling to the very edge to keep it from shrinking when browning. Sprinkle lightly with sugar and bake in slow oven (325 degrees) until delicately browned—about 15 to 20 minutes. Cool, then chill before serving—a dessert to grace the feast.

Holly and Festive Decorations For Christmas Season Wedding

Miss Fay Hope Carter of Victoria, became the bride of Allan Ronald Boyd, RCN, of Vancouver, in a double-ring ceremony at St. Paul's Naval Garrison Church, Esquimalt, Monday evening. Officiating at the service was Rev. Roberts.

Miss Carter's maid of honor was Miss Yvonne Clearie, and the Misses Rosina and Dorothy Lane, bridesmaids.

The bride's gown was in the empire style in off-white satin, with a long train of Chantilly lace, and shoulder-length veil topped with a jeweled tiara. She carried a bouquet of Esther Reed daisies. The bridesmaids wore dresses of the fashionable peau de soie, one in deep purple and the other flame. Maid of honor was in floral chiffon over satin.

Squadron Leader Sam Lane gave the bride away. Mr. Ross Sinclair was best man and Bill Lockhead, usher.

Following the wedding service 150 guests were greeted by the newlyweds at the Olde England Inn where the spirit of Christmas prevailed in the rooms beautifully decorated with holly, white wedding bells tied with large white satin bows, and lights. Host and hostess for the occasion were Squadron Leader Lane and Mrs. Lane. Mrs. Lane wore an emerald green satin gown beautifully hand embroidered, made and presented to Mrs. Lane as a gift from the bride's mother. The decorated four-tiered wedding cake graced the bride's table, presided over by Mrs. Lane.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boyd, Vancouver, parents of the groom. Special guests were Mayor and Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah. During the reception Mrs. E. C. Conarroe sang and David Palmer entertained at the Hammond organ.

A surprise of the evening, a gift from the host and hostess, was a tape recording of messages from the bride's parents and members of her family who reside in Mandeville, Jamaica. In return a recording of the wedding service and reception was made to send to the bride's family, with many of the guests sending messages.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carter of Mandeville, Jamaica, has lived in Victoria for four years.

For going away the bride donned a navy blue dress with cut work yoke in white, topped with a powder blue wool coat and white fur felt hat, with white accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following a honeymoon trip to the United States the couple will be at home in their new apartment on Richmond Avenue after December 21st.

Mrs. Johnston Wins Decorating Prizes

In the Cadboro Bay United Church Christmas Decorations Show recently Mrs. C. Johnston won the aggregate prize and Craig Penney won the children's aggregate. Mrs. Kenneth Kiernan presented the trophies.

Individual prizes were won by: Mrs. Johnston for miniature Christmas tree; Mrs. C. W. Wilkins for green and gold arrangement; Mrs. K. McNeill for buffet centre for children's party; Mrs. Wilkins, religious arrangement; Mrs. R. J. Penney, miniature Santa Claus; Mrs. R. Young, dining table centerpiece; Mrs. Young, mantel arrangement; Mrs. Wilkins, door swag and Mrs. Johnston, tree ornament.

In the children's classes, Barbara McNeill won the green and gold arrangement; Judy Johnston, tree ornament and Valerie Barnes, place cards.

First Christmas Party

A Christmas tree decorated by the young people themselves, set a motif for the first party in the Occupational Centre for the Retarded, since the house at 1450 Elford Street has been taken over.

Displayed for sale at the tea on Wednesday was attractive jewelry made from stones picked up on the beaches; hooked rugs, bath salt containers, decorated with shells; felt picture craft and other articles made by the nine young people now enrolled at the centre.

Afternoon tea, including home-made bread and cakes, made by the young people, was served during the afternoon.

Mrs. Winnifred Clark, executive director of the association, received guests, assisted by Mrs. C. Marryatt, the crafts instructor.

Holiday Mood at Bazaar At St. David's-by-the-Sea

Gay with Christmas decorations and a lighted tree, the hall of St. David's-by-the-Sea, presented a festive appearance for the annual Christmas Bazaar held Wednesday afternoon under auspices of the Women's Guild.

Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of the parish, introduced Mrs. K. M. Lewis, president of the guild, who welcomed the guests and presented Mrs. Forth, wife of Archdeacon J. W. Forth, who opened the bazaar. Mrs. Forth stressed the satisfaction to be had by a congregation, in working together in the church and for the church. Mrs. Forth was given a corsage of Christmas roses accented with holly.

The pantry stall, which was well stocked with traditional Christmas baking as well as the usual home cooking was in charge of Mrs. H. J. Stevenson, Mrs. J. H. Mitchell, Mrs. C. B. Peterson and Mrs. Helen Dawson. Needlework was sold by Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. R. Renfrew and Mrs. J. Humble. Superfluties were the charge of Mrs. A. Taylor and Mrs. R. G. Lowe. Mrs. J. Wyper had a "Lucky Dip" for the children and Mrs. W. Ronald sold parcels of mystery. Mrs. S. Morgan Hobbs and Mrs. H. W. Gallop, sold gifts and novelties from a most attractive stall, while Mrs. J. B. Minchin sold Christmas cards and checked parcels.

Under the convenship of Mrs. A. P. Williams, tea was served from a table covered with a linen cloth trimmed with wide hand crocheted fillet lace and centred with an arrangement of lighted graduated tapers. Pouring, were Mrs. Walker and Mrs. R. O. Wilkes. Assisting in serving tea were Mrs. R. Sinkinson, Mrs. E. Mackinnon, Mrs. D. McKay, Mrs. T. Anderson, Mrs. E. Small, Mrs. K. Dean, Miss V. Foster and Miss Vivian Talbot. Mrs. A. S. Miller was in charge of the sale of tea tickets.

Proceeds from the afternoon amounted to $265.

Charming bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. David Jackson, wed recently in St. Aidan's Church. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Ball, 3646 Iona Drive. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilmot, 1244 Palmer Road. The young couple are now making their home at 831 Selkirk Avenue. (Jus-Rite photo.)

17th Century Subjects Biographer's Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Ishbel Ross is a jolly little blonde Scotswoman who looks like the last person in the world to hang trepe.

But she's worried these days about the survival of something close to her heart: Biography.

"I'm afraid it's going to be killed off," she said recently as her latest book—Silhouette in Diamonds, on the queen of Chicago society, Mrs. Potter Palmer—rolled off the presses. "Everybody is writing his own biography, or having it ghosted."

"This terrible urge of self confession that's rampant," she sniffed, "is going to affect the whole biographical period."

"And besides, nowadays nobody keeps diaries, or even writes letters you can call letters. There are no more charming epistles being penned in violet ink and tied together by ribbon to be discovered by a biographer."

This might make Miss Ross sound like a lavender-and-olde-lace type. The truth is, she's been a hardheaded reporter since about the First World War. For years she covered top news events for the New York Herald Tribune, and she's still the tireless reporter in re-searching her books.

"I go after biographical facts the same way I would cover a story," she explained. "I study the historical scene, read books of the period, travel extensively and interview innumerable people."

CAME TO CANADA
Miss Ross left Scotland after finishing school, worked on Toronto newspapers for a while, then joined The Herald Tribune in 1919. On an assignment in 1922 she met and married Bruce Rae of the New York Times, and they're still a happy couple.

When their daughter arrived in 1933 she quit newspaper work to stay home with the baby. She tried writing novels, and her first one, Promenade Deck, became a best seller. It was made into a movie called Three on a Honeymoon, a fact she has learned to live with.

New Name for Tots' Toys—'Subliminal Educators'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Back in the good old days, toys were toys.

Now, mothers of America, be advised: toys are subliminal educators. Only don't let the kids know it.

Richard Hackett, educational consultant to a toy firm and a former science department head in the Milford, Conn., school system, said so.

"These subliminal educators," he said in an interview, "are an ideal bridge between school and play."

Hackett, who is writing instructional booklets for chemistry, physics and microscope sets the science-minded Santa might leave under the Christmas tree, said also that it's an educational axiom that toys are a continuation of a child's education.

"Consider the effect of your own leisure time activities," he said, "and you'll have some idea of what I mean, for example, if you take up boating as a hobby, you'll also read boating magazines. "What's more, you'll spend time talking about boating. And you'll tend to draw closer to those of your friends who share your interest in the sport."

The effect: you build up a considerable store of knowledge on the subject without ever being conscious of the book-learning level of broadening your education.

Hackett said the same process holds true for a child and his toys. "And this is why," he said, "we call them subliminal educators."

The best example of how this works with children, according to the expert, is in the field of science.

Tony Wins His Spurs

Plane Racket Probe Ordered

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Balcer said Thursday he is asking departmental officials to investigate the complaints of residents near Vancouver International Airport about the noise of engine testing.

More than 100 residents of the area have asked action to reduce the nuisance.

LONDON (UPI)—Buckingham Palace is breathing easier. Anthony Armstrong-Jones has proved he is not a dopedologist.

Armstrong-Jones made his first public appearance without his wife, Princess Margaret, and not once did he put his foot in his mouth.

To the relief of the British royal circle, Tony did not follow the lead of his brother-in-law, Prince Philip, who admits to have invented—and practiced—dopedology, the science of "foot-in-mouth."

Royal observers said Tony passed his first test and it looks as though the former London bohemian who gave up stovepipe pants may have some more royal assignments coming his way.

Armstrong-Jones accomplished his mission the hard way, too, appearing at a schoolboy photo exhibition at the Dorchester Hotel. He managed to be correct without being a stuffed shirt.

First of all, the critics liked his speech in which he handed out advice to young photographers. "Be fresh, original," he told them.

Tony admitted he still takes pictures—but on the sly. He said that now and then he slips out to get candid camera shots of scenes like news vendors and bootblacks.

"But I've got to be pretty quick," said Tony. "Otherwise people will be taking candid pictures of me."

Spencer Farm Sold

LYTTON (CP)—Sale of the Earlscourt farm here and more than 200 head of cattle by the estate of the late Col. Victor Spencer is expected to realize about $250,000.

The cattle farm will be sold to supermarket owner Norman Gregory of Haney for an estimated $125,000. The cattle were sold by auction in Kamloops this week for about $130,000.

Mixed Breeds Third Group Isolated by South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI)—Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has announced plans to apply full segregation to South Africa's mixed-breeds, who now enjoy some privileges denied full-blooded Negroes.

Verwoerd's plan calls for the creation of a government department of colored (mixed-breed) affairs to oversee separate mixed breed communities, technical schools, business activities and welfare agencies. The separate activities would be staffed as well as used by persons of mixed blood as soon as the necessary experts could be trained.

"The aim is to assure that whites and coloreds develop side by side, each retaining his own identity," the prime minister said.

attack from the anti-government minority in parliament. Opposition legislator J. Hamilton Russell charged the Verwoerd plan would transform the mixed-breeds into "perpetual serfs."

Lady Mayor's Foes Elected

ALBURNI—Mayor Mabel Anderson last night received a sharp rebuke from Alburni voters when three council candidates who campaigned on their opposition to her policies were elected with clear majorities.

All three were backed by the Alburni Voters' Association. Heading the Alburni poll which, with a 776-signature petition, last week asked the provincial government to sack the mayor.

Three candidates, who were in contention for council seats with Mayor Anderson's blessing, were roundly defeated at the polls, including incumbent Alderman Gordon S. Lundine who polled less than half the number of votes of the three victors.

The vote was interpreted as a strong public protest against the mayor's handling of council meetings and followed almost a full year of stormy council proceedings.

James C. Roy, the Third Defeated, besides Ald. Lundine, were Edwin A. Beck with entry, was elected with a total 317 votes and Wilfred K. McKenzie with 399 votes.

Mayor Beth Wood Wins New Term

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Mayor Elizabeth Wood was returned to office in the city of New Westminster Thursday, winning handily over two former mayors in a three-way race.

The 53-year-old grandmother went into office for a second term, an easy winner over Fred (Toby) Jackson, who lost his office to Mrs. Wood in the 1958 voting, and over one-time mayor and former alderman Lewis Sangster, who resigned his council seat last summer in a bitter dispute with the mayor.

'Don't Delay' Atomic Power

Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the B.C. energy board, last night suggested Canada should get on with development of nuclear power instead of wasting time with conventional forms of energy. He told some 400 American and Canadian delegates and wives attending the Western Forestry Conference at the Empress Hotel: "We're in a changing, exciting period of life. Let us not be dawdling at crosswalks but get on to a better way of life for everybody."

Estimates of reserves of earth's conventional fuels such as coal, oil and gas run from a "pessimistic 25 years" to an "optimistic 250 years," he said, whereas the energy problem will be solved for "hundreds of thousands of years" once scientists overcome fusion problems.

Canada's huge supply of radioactive fuel offers an "almost limitless" power of self-destruction and "for the first time opens a way for an attack on poverty wherever it exists," he said.

"Just think, the end of war and the end of poverty almost within our grasp."

Perseverance Pays In Saanich Bylaw

Perseverance paid off for Saanich council last night when ratepayers in the Cadboro Bay-Shelbourne-Gordon Head areas approved bylaws authorizing council to install sewers.

It was the third time the council had put similar bylaws to much the same area. Each of the first two times the bylaws were defeated narrowly. The $1,200,000 sewerage scheme was put to voters in two bylaws—one to authorize installation of trunk sewers and the other to authorize installation of lateral connections to houses.

The trunk bylaw gained 652 "yes" votes to 390 "no" votes—63 per cent in favor; the lateral bylaw gained 643 "yes" votes to 406 "no" votes—about 62 per cent in favor. A majority vote of 60 per cent was needed to pass the bylaws.

"I think the people will find it is a wise decision," Reeve George Chatterton said when the final returns came in at Saanich municipal hall. "It is a great step forward for Saanich that this large area will have sewers."

The trunk bylaw gained

31 Per Cent Cast Ballots In Victoria

Thirty-one per cent of Victoria's eligible voters cast ballots yesterday, a turnout which somewhat disappointed but didn't surprise city officials.

The vote was slightly larger than in 1958, the previous non-mayoralty year, even though in that year the voters also had the off-street parking and amalgamation issues before them. The turnout then was 30.75 per cent.

"I would say that although it's nothing to boast about, it's not an uncommonly low turnout in Victoria or elsewhere," said returning officer M. Frank Hunter.

Three Plays Enjoyable Evening

By BERT BINNY

There's an entertaining evening to be had at the Langham Court Theatre tonight and Saturday, provided by three plays produced by the Theatre Guild Studio Group.

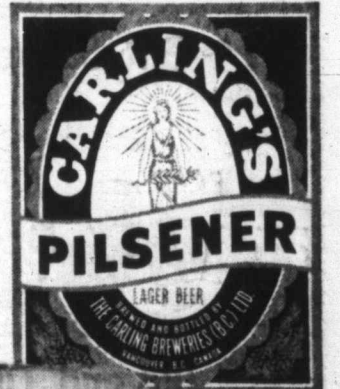

Avis Walton's original "The Wicked Castle" with its cast of 30 youngsters provides an energetic, sparkling opening. Outstanding for consistent success in long parts were Risha Golby and Trevor Wilson. Susan Mabee, Wake Golby and Gillian Farr did excellently in lesser roles. Ceredwyn Richards made an attractive Princess and David Maltby worked hard as the Old Duke.

OUTSTANDING

Nora Kellie, who both directed and acted in "The Silver Key," was outstanding in this play. Otherwise it tended to lack definition and was treated too heavily.

"The Wonder Hat," directed by Clifford Clarke, however, is the stuff that makes audiences come back for more. It had good pace, excellent timing, fine grouping, movement and characterization and precisely the right, light-hearted atmosphere. Players Vivian Briggs, Marilyn Norman, Tony Maynard, Bill Fawley and Gary MacDonald were all consistently fine.

B.C.'s favorite because of the taste!

From the first foaming sip, it's invigorating! So easy to take... so deeply satisfying. The Best Brews in the World come from Carling's.

Quebec Religious Holiday Pity, Says Playwright

MONTREAL (CP and UPI) — Brendan Behan, ebullient Irish playwright, downed his whisky straight Thursday and tossed off insults and compliments with gay abandon.

Finishing off his first 48 hours in Montreal, Behan attended a reception and showed a marked preference for the company of reporters over university professors.

"I like reporters to come and see me—it makes me realize I'm not dead," said Behan.

OBITUARIES
"There's only one bad thing they can print about you—that's an obituary notice."

Niagara Falls

Tour Centre Will Cost $30,000,000

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (UPI) — The city announced plans yesterday to build a multi-million-dollar global tourist centre overlooking Niagara Falls.

Mayor Franklin Miller said that a group of five Canadian and American businessmen from the area have agreed to provide $30,000,000 needed to construct the 400-foot-high centre.

Nathaniel Winecoff, the Hollywood designer of Disneyland, drew up the sketches.

OTHER OPINIONS:

America and Australia: If you're honest you go to America and earn a living. If you have a criminal record you have to go farther—to Australia.

Arabs: A race of first class bores but they are in the majority in Algeria.

ENGLISH, GO HOME

New York: It suffers from a shortage of newspapers.

The English: I think the English are a fine people but I think if they would get out of our country it would be better for them and a lot better for us.

Newspaper Strike Off

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — The second major strike threatened against New York City newspapers in six weeks was averted by a tentative contract settlement reached at dawn.

The settlement, which must be ratified by the rank and file of the newspaper and mail deliverers union, kept pre-Christmas editions flowing to 5,500,000 readers.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

One of the first jobs Buddy Greco, record and nightclub star, had in show business was as vocalist, pianist and arranger for Benny Goodman's band.

One day he helped Benny find a new female vocalist. The fifth applicant to try out was a show-stopper. The musicians found it difficult to play. They were staring at her contours, sleepy blue eyes and petulant lower lip.

It didn't matter whether they played or not—she couldn't sing anyway.

After the audition, Greco singled her out. She was disappointed at not being selected.

"You don't have to sing with your looks," said Buddy. "Why don't you go to Hollywood and try the movies?"

"You think I'd really have a chance?" she asked.

She took Buddy's advice. Maybe you've heard of her. Her name is now Marilyn Monroe.

OAK BAY BEACH HOTEL

For our special Sunday evening dinner on Dec. 11 we will be entertained by a group of young speakers in a program of poetry and prose under the direction of MISS WILFRID ORD, voice and speech specialist. This will be something different from our usual evenings and we know you will enjoy it. RESERVATIONS: EV 5-1157

Fair Group Drops Claims

Appeals for District Grants

B.C. Agricultural Association has stopped demanding money it claimed the city owed it and is now appealing to the four Greater Victoria municipalities for grants.

The association at first claimed the city owed it some $60,000 for fire insurance paid to the city when the Wilfrid Ord buildings were destroyed by fire in the 1940s. This and an additional claim were rejected by city council.

We'll Go It Alone
Swears Premier

By PETER BRUTON

Thorny dispute over financing of the $450,000,000 Columbia River power development exploded in Victoria yesterday when Premier Bennett and federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton told newsmen completely different stories as to what the latest federal offer really meant.

Premier Bennett said Ottawa was trying to make a profit of $40,000,000 on a loan of $172,000,000 and was also demanding 50 per cent of the profits from the development. Justice Minister Fulton, three hours later, said Ottawa wasn't offering a "loan" but a "partnership," that the so-called profit couldn't apply because that part of the original proposal had been withdrawn, and that Ottawa would share only until its "investment" was repaid.

and guarantee the borrowings of the B.C. Power Commission.

Mr. Fulton charged that Premier Bennett had "falsified" and "misinterpreted" the federal offer and said Ottawa was determined there shall be a measure of federal supervision over the Columbia projects.

Major divergences centred on whether the federal offer was a "loan" or an "investment" and whether the federal government would be making a profit from the deal.

Here are the two sides of the story:

Bennett:

Premier Bennett has flatly rejected a federal government offer to advance money towards the Columbia River development and said the provincial government would finance the $450,000,000 scheme itself by guaranteeing B.C. Power Commission bonds.

He explained that under the terms set out by Ottawa the federal government stood to make a profit of more than $10,000,000 over and above interest and repayments charges, and was also demanding half the profits from the development.

"The whole thing is a very great disappointment," said the premier after the federal government offer was brought here by Justice Minister Davie Fulton.

"This means an enormous amount of money for the people of B.C. to pay and as premier of the province I must protect our people," he told a press conference yesterday afternoon.

The premier added he "just can't believe" that this was the final offer from Ottawa and said he believed the federal government would take a second look.

He said the Ottawa offer, contained in a letter written by Finance Minister Donald Fleming, was for a loan of $172,000,000 for half the cost of three storage dams at market interest rates plus one-eighth of one per cent.

"One-eighth of one per cent, that doesn't sound much at all, but over 50 years it amounts to a fortune," he said.

Fulton:

Justice Minister Davie Fulton said last night that the federal government's offer towards the Columbia River development was "the most generous offer ever made by the federal government to any province in the financing and development of a hydro electric project."

"It is this offer that Mr. Bennett has rejected for his own political purposes and to the prejudice of the people of B.C.," said the federal cabinet minister.

"Furthermore, the nature and the terms of Mr. Bennett's rejection establish clearly that he made up his mind to reject it for his own political purposes before he received Mr. Fleming's letter," he said.

Bonner:

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last night accused the federal government of "an unwarranted invasion of the sovereignty of the province" in its stand on financing the Columbia River development.

He termed federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton's talk of federal interest arising out of the Canadian-U.S. treaty as "pure twaddle."

"The B.C. government and the B.C. people, by their understanding and credit, are the only people in the Dominion who can make this project go at all," he said from Vancouver.

"The federal government can hold back on the scheme by failing to conclude the treaty but they have no capacity by property rights or any other interest to make it a success."

A two-vote difference between the last of four successful city council candidates and the first of the runners-up last night added excitement to Victoria's civic elections. (Other voting news on Pages 15, 23, 28.)

In first place, with 3,361 votes in the final count, was Ald. Austin Curtis. In second, with 2,546, was Ald. Arthur Dowell. In third with 2,470, was newcomer Michael John Griffin, and in fourth, with 1,849, was newcomer William C. Hudson.

But next was labor candidate A. W. Toone with 1,847. Returning Officer M. Frank Hunter late last night said he will recount the ballots this morning in the presence of Mr. Hudson and Mr. Toone if both agree to this procedure.

Oddly, the first four names on the ballot were Curtis, Dowell, Griffin and Hudson—a fact which Mr. Toone, listed 10th among the 11 candidates, noted when it appeared at the end of the first complete count that he had lost by 21 votes.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT

"It has a psychological effect on a long ballot like that," he said. The policies and actions of Victoria's present city council nevertheless appeared to have received general endorsement in the certain election of two aldermen and one young businessman, Mr. Griffin, a plumbing firm director.

Mr. Griffin had not differed greatly with present council policies in seeking election. Nor had Mr. Hudson, who retired last summer as office manager of an insurance company branch.

Mr. Toone, however, was one of several candidates who suggested that business was better represented on council than home-owners, and that this situation should be changed at the polls.

U.S. Road Builder
Stays in Jail

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's Appeal Court Thursday rejected an appeal by an American road builder who had been given an indefinite prison sentence for contempt of court.

The court ordered that Montana contractor C. W. Thornton remain in Oakalla until he pays $25,000 owing to Burton Glazier of Seattle.

Thornton and B.C. Highways

Minister Gagliardi were both convicted of contempt of court. They were found guilty of disobeying a 1959 court order which directed that any funds the highways department may pay to Thornton be paid to a receiver in Vancouver. This order followed a judgment granted against the contractor by Glazier.

Mr. Gagliardi is expected to open his appeal against the contempt charge in appeal court today. He was fined $1,000 on conviction.

City's Needy Sure Winners
In Tonight's Hockey Duel

No one can predict the outcome of tonight's duel between Victoria Cougars and the Winnipeg Warriors but with the help of generous hockey fans Greater Victoria's 500 most needy families will be sure winners.

Daily Colonist carriers will be stationed at various points throughout the arena to stage a collection for The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund. Carriers will be easily identified.

A donation large or small for the 500 Fund through the carriers is an investment in hope for 500 needy families at Christmas time when their wants are hardest felt.

Arena Stew Won't Boil Dry Lid's Been On, Off for Weeks

By R. O. MARRION

Five weeks' fighting in the open and behind closed doors has achieved nothing final in the arena controversy—and has left some Victorians full of suspicions and some wondering what all the fuss is about.

"It's a mess," a storekeeper said yesterday. "They ought to kick out everybody concerned and start afresh."

"We don't really know what's been going on," said a printer. "There ought to be a public inquiry with sworn evidence."

SILLIEST SQUABBLE

"Silliest squabble I ever heard of!" said a butcher. "Joe Dukowski and the staff have been doing a good job, and I can't see what all the fighting is about. Everyone ought to get back to work and forget it."

The controversy stemmed from the resignation in October of arena office manager Kenneth Noakes and in quick succession, five other employees, in protest against Joseph Dukowski's management.

Immediate cause of Mr. Noakes' resignation apparently was that Mr. Dukowski spoke so roughly to a woman employee that she cried.

HOLD INQUIRY

Commissioner Courtney Haddock, it was learned, proposed that the arena commission hold an inquiry into the series of resignations, but the other commissioners took the stand that they had nothing to inquire into.

But Ald. Hugh Ramsay pressed for a report from the commission on the situation. It became known that Mr. Dukowski had employed his daughter and son-in-law at the arena, that he had not dismissed them as soon as ordered, and that he had been "severely reprimanded" by the commission.

CLOSED HEARING

Engaged as counsel by the six ex-employees, E. E. Pearlman called for a public inquiry, and so did the press, a couple of aldermen and apparently a large part of the public. The demand resulted in a closed hearing of the ex-employees and Mr. Dukowski by the commission.

The majority of the commission had held that Mr. Dukowski had been a successful manager of the arena and should be retained although he had made "mistakes."

After the hearing, however, the commission accepted "with regret" Mr. Dukowski's resignation, effective in 90 days, and resolved to re-staff the arena quickly, considering applications from the ex-employees. And Mr. Haddock said he was quitting because Mr. Dukowski wasn't dismissed at once and the other six rehired.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

The commission won a vote of confidence from city council — and withdrawal of Mr. Haddock's resignation — with an assurance that all the ex-employees would be fairly treated, but it soon became apparent that the commission wasn't planning to rehire Mr. Noakes, and the others would not go back singly without him. That led to a blast from Mr. Haddock against the commission and a meeting, called by the mayor, of the commission and council.

At the meeting, the majority of the commissioners made their point of view clear: that

Commission's Compromise Laid in City's Lap Today

They thought Mr. Noakes had let the arena down by resigning at the beginning of a busy season, that they considered he had been associated with Mr. Dukowski in all that had gone on at the arena, and that therefore they didn't think he should be rehired.

REHIRE ALL SIX

But the commission was sent away with the suggestion that it rehire all six employees at least pending the decision of a new manager on their suitability to requirements.

The commission, after many hours of dispute, came up with a compromise.

It is understood to be that Mr. Dukowski will be offered a job at reduced salary as promotions and building manager, that a new general manager will be engaged, and that all six ex-employees will have their jobs back.

SPECIAL MEETING

The proposals will be put before city council at a special meeting today.

And, chances are, the arena controversy will continue because council is much further from unanimity than the commission on these questions:

• Have Mr. Noakes and the other employees who resigned rather than work with Mr. Dukowski rendered themselves undesirable as employees by the way and the time they chose to draw the situation to attention?

• Has the commission been keeping close enough watch on arena affairs? Has it put the city in a bad position by its handling of the whole matter?

• If so, should the commissioners be asked to resign?

Red Rocket Experts Blown Up?

ROME (UPI) — An Italian news agency said last night about 100 persons including three of Russia's top missile experts were killed in the explosion of a new type of Soviet rocket on Oct. 21.

The news agency Contintale said the three missile experts were Air Marshal Mitrofan I. Nedelin, Gen. Nikolai O. Pavlovsky and atomic expert Prof. Dimitri V. Efremov.

The deaths of the missile experts had been announced by the Russians separately and without details.

Lower Their Prices

Angry Tars
Draw Bead
On MerchantsBy HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Victoria merchants were yesterday described as "unfriendly to the navy" for their criticism of Christmas present buying abroad by members of the RCN who have recently been on service in foreign waters.

Chief annoyance of the merchants' attitude was expressed by navy wives. They all expressed the view that their husbands had every right to buy presents where they wanted.

AMASSED GIFTS
The merchants' objections followed the return of three RCN vessels from a lengthy cruise during which the crews had amassed gifts for their families from foreign sources, and thus had deprived the local merchants of their Christmas shopping money.

One navy wife said that the Victoria merchants had only themselves to blame. "They should bring down their prices."

BLACK EYE
Another said "Only three of the 18 ships based at Esquimalt were involved in the foreign purchases, but the whole navy is getting a black eye by the merchants' criticism. Every year we spend about $300 in Victoria stores at Christmas."

Teachers' Pay Arbitration
On Monday

Arbitration of a dispute over teachers' salaries in Greater Victoria is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the school board office at Craigdarroch Castle. Local teachers are seeking increases averaging 12 per cent and trustees claim salaries should remain at present level.

Judy
Goes Home

Sixteen-year-old Judy Westwood, once listed in serious condition after being thrown from a horse Nov. 6, went home yesterday from Royal Jubilee Hospital.

She doesn't remember the accident itself, still likes horses and has expressed a desire to go riding again. "She's coming along fine," said her mother, Mrs. William Westwood, 2633 Cadboro Bay. "She's home in time for Christmas and we're all real happy about it."

Statue Head
Still Missing

City police report no success so far in their search for the head from the bust of Queen Elizabeth, broken off by vandals in Beacon Hill Park Tuesday night.

The bust, once stolen bodily in a prank, has twice been damaged by vandals since being placed in the park.

Scurrah Will Hear
Land Reserve Plan

A plan to reserve land on the Cathedral Hill site, near the new provincial courthouse, will be put to Mayor Percy Scurrah Tuesday afternoon. A committee appointed at a recent meeting of the Victoria Symphony Society, the Gilbert and Sullivan Society and Victoria Little Theatre will ask Mayor Scurrah and the provincial government to acquire all property bounded by Courtney, Blanshard, Quadra and Broughton Streets, and property across the road on Broughton.

The proposal arose out of a suggestion by Mr. Barraclough that the Royal Theatre should be purchased instead of the city building an auditorium and the area surrounding the theatre built on to house arts and crafts centres. The meeting of members of the three groups was told that the value of the property had increased about $200,000 in three years and could be expected to increase in value still more.

In addition, city planner Roderick Clark warned that commercial development could be expected in the area within a year.

"Canadian naval families spend most of their money in Victoria and only a very small percentage is spent outside the city," said another.

"What right has anyone to declare where we should spend our money," said another wife. "We pay income tax on our earnings just like anyone else."

ROUGH TREATMENT
"My husband works on a government ship although he is not in the navy," said another complainant, "but we get the same rough treatment in this city as the navy people do."

"This is an anti-services city. The only time men in uniform are welcome here is in time of war, but as soon as the flag waving is over, the local people have no time for us."

Another wife agreed, although she added "Halifax is a cold town too, and every bit as bad."

NO DELINQUENCY?
"It is like everything else the navy does" said another wife. "We never do anything worth while. If a navy man gets into trouble he gets headlines in the papers. Is it always the man in uniform who is made the scapegoat? Is there no delinquency among civilian youngsters as well?"

"I would like to know how the merchants in this town would fare if the navy was uprooted from Esquimalt," was another reply.

A navy petty officer said: "I was going to buy a new car here in the spring, but if that is the way the local merchants feel about us, I am going over to buy it in Vancouver, and to heck with them."

ONE-SIDED
"The Colonist article yesterday was one-sided and it smelled," said another navy man who had been on one of the cruising ships. "When we were at sea we had only $20 a week of spending money, the rest was sent to our wives at home and spent in Victoria that applied to the 45 married men of our crew of 48."

He added that he had purchased a watch for his wife at $21. "If the local merchants could match it for value I would not have bought it, but they can't. Their prices are far too high."

BLAME NAVY
"It is the same thing every time things go wrong—they blame the navy" said a navy wife married for 18 years. "We are not in the same class as civilians, and it was the same thing when we were in Halifax, only worse. The merchants should realize that navy men don't go willingly on these trips to leave their wives and kids—they just have to go, and I don't see anything wrong in their bringing us back some gifts."

"More power to the men that buy gifts—if they have any money left after trying to keep up with the cost of living in Victoria" wrote another indignant navy wife. "The merchants of Victoria should be thankful to have the navy around spending money here when there is so much unemployment."

'Friendship' Feast Theme

B.C. cabinet ministers, Indian chiefs and councilmen from bands on southern Vancouver Island will attend a "friendship feast" at Strawberry Vale community hall at 8 p.m. today.

Chief John Albany, of the host Songhees band, said yesterday the banquet was arranged to let government and Indian leaders become better acquainted.

NATIVE DISHES
Over tables groaning with seafood delicacies, many of them traditional native dishes, some 150 guests will discuss any thing but politics—a subject that has been declared taboo. There will be no formal speeches and the banquet will wind up with a display of ceremonial Indian dances.

Beneath the "strictly-for-enjoyment" tone of proceedings is the serious purpose of bringing members of Indian bands closer to the government.

GET TOGETHER
"Times are changing so fast we must get together," said Mr. Albany. "We've got to look to the future. More and more legislation is touching on the lives of our people."

"We hope if chiefs and councilmen of other bands want to carry it on, this will be an annual affair, perhaps held at a more central location up-Island. We are giving a lead."

FIRST TIME
It will be the first time in 100 years of B.C. history, perhaps in Canada, that cabinet ministers have been guests of Indian bands at a banquet, he said.

Saanich MLA John Tisdalle helped Indian bands arrange to present their invitations in person to members of the provincial cabinet. Also invited to attend are leaders of bands as far north on the Island as Alberni on the west and Comox on the east.

COBBLE HILL — Trustees C. D. Meredith of Mill Bay and Dennis M. Hurley of Shawnigan Lake were returned by acclamation to the board of the Koksilah Valley hospital improvement district.

Bonner Hints 2 a.m. For New Year Parties
Attorney-General Robert Bonner yesterday hinted that local law enforcement agencies should allow public dances and parties to continue to 2 a.m. on Sunday, Jan. 1.

One Vote Separates Candidates

Duncan Recount Likely

DUNCAN—There will likely be a recount of ballots cast here yesterday because of a one-vote difference between two candidates. (See results page 15, stories page 28.)

Ald. Robert Cairns received 271 and James Patterson 270. Incumbent Ald. James Saunders topped the poll with 365 votes. There were two seats vacant.

"I don't know if I will ask for a recount or not, but you can say I quite likely will," said Mr. Patterson. "I will make up my mind Monday. I have five days to decide."

He added that there was a near-35-per-cent vote of a possible 1,400 and that he believed there was "possibly an error, for or against me."

After the counting Mayor Jack Dobson said it appeared a heavy vote.

Ambulance Decided On
At Parksville

PARKSVILLE—School District 69 Ambulance Society will have a new ambulance early in the new year following a special meeting of directors of the society to discuss ways and means of improving the local ambulance service.

An order has been placed for a modern two-stretcher vehicle to replace the one-stretcher ambulance now in use here. The new ambulance which will have a more powerful motor than the present one and is to be delivered early in the new year.

It is the hope of the society to increase membership in the ambulance district which includes the surrounding areas of Parksville and Qualicum, north to Bowser and south to Nanossee Bay and embracing Hilliers, Coombs and Errington, so that the service can be self-supporting and ultimately expanded to two vehicles.

One problem is the lack of qualified drivers, particularly in the Parksville area, and volunteers will be welcomed by the society.

First-aid training is desirable for driving volunteers.

LADYSMITH—First sitting of an arbitration board to decide next year's teacher salaries in School District 67 will be held here Dec. 22.

PAULINE OWENS

Pauline Owens, a 16-year-old Victoria High School student, was presented the main prize yesterday in a province-wide essay contest for high school students.

The contest sponsored by the Canadian Legion enabled students from Grades 10 to 12 to compete.

Pauline was presented with a $20 cheque by Harry Wickes, chairman of the competition, for her essay on "We Will Remember Them."

Second and third prizes also went to Victoria High School students. Linda Parfitt of Grade 11 received $12, and Cashman Hampton of Grade 12 received $8.

PARKSVILLE—Sam Gough was chosen by members of Parksville Fish and Game Club as "member of the year" and was awarded the Alex Young Memorial Trophy in a presentation made by Mrs. Dave Morgan of Cumberland, sister of the late Mr. Young.

The Rushton Memorial Trophy for the largest fish caught by a game club member was won by James Keddie, and the Parksville Fish and Game Club Trophy for the largest deer shot by a member was awarded to Robert "Panner" Thompson. These two trophies were presented by James E. Kingsley.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Senior High School auditorium resounded with sparkling melody Wednesday night with the presentation of Nicolai's hilarious comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

It was an abridged version presented by the Canadian Opera Company and received with enthusiasm by the audience.

NANAIMO—The Millstone River and its flow of water is back in the news again but only for another postponement before further study.

B.C. water controller A. F. Paged had planned a conference with the recreation and civic purposes commission but has now asked that this be put off until the new year.

Members of the commission have complained that there is too little water flowing through Bowen Park in the heart of the city.

The commission is reported to be in favor of raising the level of Brannan Lake to increase the summer flow to make swimming pools for children and fishing ponds for sportsmen.

However this proposal has brought strong reaction from farmers who state that if the lake level is raised, several hundred acres of valuable farm land will be under water.

NANAIMO—A $724,814 contract has been awarded by the federal department of public works to Fraser River Pile Driving Company Limited of New Westminster for reconstruction of the assembly wharf at Nanaimo.

The company submitted the lowest bid of eight. The work is scheduled for completion within 14 months.

The contract calls for complete renewal of berth "A" wharf and scow wharf, along with renewal of the freight shed, movable slip, sub-station, and part of the bulkhead wall. The bulkhead will be rebuilt with steel sheet piling for about 527 feet; the new berth "A" wharf will be 66 feet wide by 600 feet long and the new scow wharf will be 279 feet long.

The new steel freight shed will be 40 feet by 120 feet, and will contain an office with a floor area of 460 square feet. The existing movable slip will be replaced with a 50-ton capacity steel slip and the existing 10 foot by 160 foot railway restle will be renewed with creosoted timber. The sub-station will also be rebuilt to house three transformers.

The wharves play an important role in lumber operations in the area. An average of 80 deep-sea ships use the wharves annually. In addition they are used for shipment of shingles, pulp, plywood, general cargo and bulk storage of sodium salts used in the pulp industry.

Present facilities, which were built about 1935, are in poor condition and load restrictions would have to be made, if reconstruction was not undertaken.

District engineer A. W. Walkey of the harbours and rivers engineering branch at Vancouver will be responsible for supervision of the work.

Can't Raise Bail

Ex-Chemainus Man
Pleads Innocence

CHEMAINUS — A former millworker here who was arrested and brought from Calgary to stand trial pleaded innocent yesterday to two charges of false pretences involving worthless cheques.

Glen Ed Trueman, 34, could not raise $1,000 bail and will be held for trial until Dec. 16. Accused said of the cheques, "I wouldn't say they were worthless, because they were good when they were cashed."

The charges involve a $50 cheque cashed Aug. 5 by Kay's Hardware, and a $10 cheque cashed Sept. 3 at Wing's Cafe. Ronald Frehlick, 19, a resident here, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding in Saltair on the Old Island Highway.

John C. Rumley, resident here, pleaded innocent to a charge of failing to stop a vehicle when requested to do so by a game warden. Trial is set for Dec. 20.

Unemployed fisherman Gilbert August, Kuper Island, was fined a total of $100 when he admitted driving a car at Courtenay last Oct. 14 when he had been barred from obtaining a driver's licence, and for operating a vehicle that was not covered with insurance for a minor.

Little Bit of Old Rome
Unearthed in VictoriaCapital Notebook
By Peter Bruton

COLLECTOR'S ITEM: An old coin, minted in Rome in the year 141 AD, was literally unearthed by Les Moutray in his front garden the other day. Provincial mines department analysts determined that the coin was made of copper, zinc and lead and the head on the piece was identified as that of Empress Faustina.

Coin experts said the item wasn't very valuable and had probably been dropped by a collector some time ago.

FROM BEDS TO WORDS: President of the Community Welfare Council, Dr. E. N. Boettcher, reports that he should soon be able to name the successful appointee to the post of executive director. Health Minister Eric Martin took time out to deny the fact yesterday that so much of government business had to be kept under wraps. The press room annex at the Empress for the 51st Western Forestry Conference is the old office of the late Gordon Sloan when he was forestry adviser to the provincial government.

ATTEMPTED SILENCER: Officials of the Victoria branch, B.C. Government Employees' Association, have warned two of their members to stop making press statements and writing letters to the newspapers or, else get out of the association.

The two members involved are John Wood and Mrs. Florence Riley who are on the staff of CCF leader Robert Strachan but are paid by the government.

Mr. Wood has been a member of the association for the past eight years and is a former branch president of New Denver.

JUNGLE JOKES: Congo jokes are a dime a dozen these days. For example... Kasavubu was flying home from the United Nations via Congolese Jungle Airways and the stewardess brought him the menu. Kasavubu noted that Baked Briton was on for $2.50, Grilled American was $2.50 and Boiled Beatinik was $5. Kasavubu wanted to know why the difference in price between the first two dishes and Boiled Beatinik. Replied the stewardess: "Have you ever tried to clean one of them things?" ... Or, as Lumumba said to Mobutu: "Defenbaker! That's a funny name."

KITE FLYER: According to Premier Bennett, he's waiting for an expression of public opinion before deciding whether his new minister without portfolio, Mrs. Buda Brown, should get a salary rather than just expenses.

Rebuke to Lady Mayor Seen In Alberni Election Results

ALBERNI—Mayor Mabel Anderson last night received a sharp rebuke from Alberni voters when three council candidates who campaigned on their opposition to her policies were elected with clear majorities.

All three were backed by the Alberni Voters' Association which, with a 776-signature petition, last week asked the provincial government to sack the mayor.

ROUNDLY BEATEN

Three candidates who were in contention for council seats with Mayor Anderson's blessing were roundly defeated at the polls, including incumbent Alderman Gordon S. Lundine who polled less than half the number of votes of the three victors.

The vote was interpreted as a strong public protest against the mayor's handling of council meetings and followed almost a full year of stormy council proceedings.

DIRECT VOTE

Heading the Alberni poll with 728 votes was Thomas S. Hamilton who a few days before the election said the results would be a direct vote of confidence or non-confidence in Mayor Anderson's administration.

He accused the mayor of lack of leadership and rejection of the principle of majority rule.

Second at the polls with 721 votes was incumbent Alderman Thomas Barnett who said that a stewardship meeting address by the mayor distorted facts "almost beyond recognition."

705 VOTES

James C. Roy, the third Alberni Voters' Association entry, was elected with a total of 705 votes.

Defeated, besides Ald. Lundine, were Edwin A. Beck with 317 votes and Wilfred K. McKenzie with 399 votes.

In Alert Bay and at Duncan a single vote separate two winning candidates from two losers. At Duncan a recount was considered likely to resolve the race between Ald. Robert Cairns with 271 votes and James Patterson with 270. But it was not known whether similar action would be taken at Alert Bay where R. W. Janowski was declared elected with 52 votes over J. Henry Lewis with 51.

SURROUNDING AREA

In Alberni, Port Alberni and the surrounding rural area a $1,006,000 school expansion referendum got a whopping 80 per cent plus majority and in Nanaimo a $496,000 school program surprised its sponsors and supporters by passing with a 65 per cent majority. Sixty per cent was required in both cases.

At Courtenay a $764,000 sewer bylaw was approved by a vote of 624 to 302.

Said Mayor W. C. Moore of Courtenay: "We accept this as an overwhelming vote of confidence—with this mandate we will go ahead as rapidly as possible under the winter work campaign to get our unemployed back to work."

At Cumberland the electorate voted 140 to 316 to lease 80 acres of municipal land to a service club for park development. The land is situated at Comox Lake.

Perseverance Pays In Saanich Bylaw

Perseverance paid off for Saanich council last night when ratepayers in the Cadboro Bay-Sheilbourne-Gordon Head areas approved bylaws authorizing council to install sewers.

It was the third time the council had put similar bylaws to much the same area. Each of the first two times the bylaws were defeated narrowly.

The $1,200,000 sewerage scheme was put to voters in two bylaws—one to authorize installation of trunk sewers and the other to authorize installation of lateral connections to houses.

The trunk bylaw gained 652 "yes" votes to 390 "no" votes—63 per cent in favor; the lateral bylaw gained 643 "yes" votes to 406 "no" votes—about 62½ per cent in favor. A majority vote of 60 per cent was needed to pass the bylaws.

"I think the people will find it is a wise decision," Reeve George Chatterton said when the final returns came in at Saanich municipal hall. "It is a great step forward for Saanich that this large area will have sewers."

31 Per Cent Cast Ballots In Victoria

Thirty-one per cent of Victoria's eligible voters cast ballots yesterday, a turnout which somewhat disappointed but didn't surprise city officials.

The vote was slightly larger than in 1958, the previous non-mayoralty year, even though in that year the voters also had the off-street parking and amalgamation issues before them. The turnout then was 30.75 per cent.

"I would say that although it's nothing to boast about, it's not an uncommonly low turnout in Victoria or elsewhere," said returning officer M. Frank Hunter.

Vancouver Fog Costs $3,000

The fog prevented the American freighter Mormacquad from docking until noon.

Pacific Marine Freighters Company had hired a work crew of 220 men to unload 200,000 boxes of Japanese oranges for 8 a.m. and had to pay wages of $750 an hour for the four hours the gang sat idle.

Three Plays Enjoyable Evening

By BERT BINNY

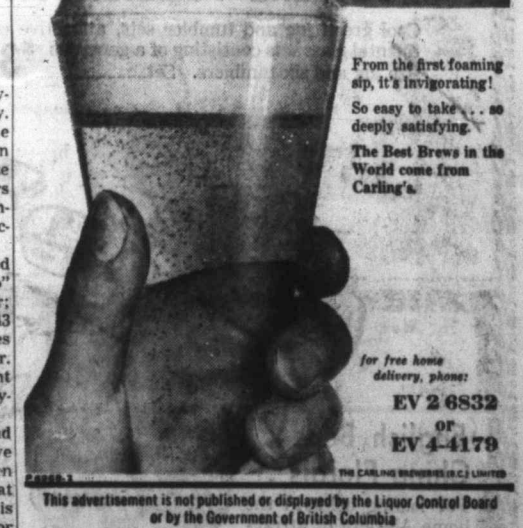

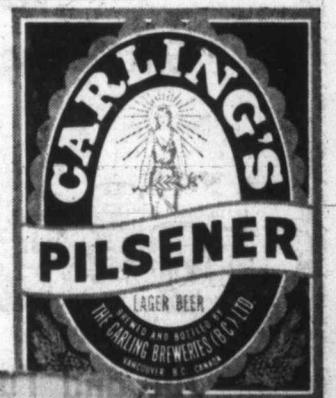

There's an entertaining evening to be had at the Langham Court Theatre tonight and Saturday, provided by three plays produced by the Theatre Guild Studio Group. Avis Walton's original "The Wicked Castle" with its cast of 30 youngsters provides an energetic, sparkling opening. Outstanding for consistent success in long parts were Risha Golby and Trevor Wilson. Susan Mabee, Wake Golby and Gillian Farr did excellently in lesser roles. Ceredwyn Richards made an attractive Princess and David Maltby worked hard as the Old Duke.

OUTSTANDING

Nora Kellie, who both directed and acted in "The Silver Key," was outstanding in this play. Otherwise it tended to lack definition and was treated too heavily.

"The Wonder Hat," directed by Clifford Clarke, however, is the stuff that makes audiences come back for more. It had good pace, excellent timing, fine grouping, movement and characterization and precisely the right, light-hearted atmosphere. Players Vivian Briggs, Marilyn Norman, Tony Maynard, Bill Fawley and Gary MacDonald were all consistently fine.

FULTON, BENNETT CLASH ON POWER

Battling flames which engulfed storage shed containing lumber carrier and a dynamo are city firemen at Atom Lumber Company, Tyee and Bay, shortly before 9 p.m. yesterday. Red glow was visible in the city and traffic piled up bumper-to-bumper on western approach to Bay Street bridge. Firemen at press time did not know cause of the fire or estimate of damage.—(Colonist photo.)

'Go It Alone' —Premier

By PETER BRUTON

Thorny dispute over financing of the $450,000,000 Columbia River power development exploded in Victoria yesterday when Premier Bennett and federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton told newsmen completely different stories as to what the latest federal offer really meant.

Premier Bennett said Ottawa was trying to make a profit of $40,000,000 on a loan of $172,000,000 and was also demanding 50 per cent of the profits from the development. Justice Minister Fulton, three hours later, said Ottawa wasn't offering a "loan" but a "partnership," that the so-called profit couldn't apply because that part of the original proposal had been withdrawn, and that Ottawa would share only until its "investment" was repaid.

Premier Bennett announced the province would go it alone and guarantee the borrowings of the B.C. Power Commission. Mr. Fulton charged that Premier Bennett had "falsified" and "misinterpreted" the federal offer and said Ottawa was determined there shall be a measure of federal supervision over the Columbia projects.

Major divergences centred on whether the federal offer was a "loan" or an "investment" and whether the federal government would be making a profit from the deal.

Here are the two sides of the story:

Bennett:

Premier Bennett has flatly rejected a federal government offer to advance money towards the Columbia River development and said the provincial government would finance the $450,000,000 scheme itself by guaranteeing B.C. Power Commission bonds.

He explained that under the terms set out by Ottawa the federal government stood to make a profit of more than $110,000,000 over and above interest and repayment charges, and was also demanding half the profits from the development.

"The whole thing is a very great disappointment," said the premier after the federal government offer was brought here by Justice Minister Davie Fulton.

"This means an enormous amount of money for the people of B.C. to pay and as premier of the province I must protect our people," he told a press conference yesterday afternoon.

The premier added he "just can't believe" that this was the final offer from Ottawa, and said he believed the federal government would take a second look.

He said the Ottawa offer, contained in a letter written by Finance Minister Donald Fleming, was for a loan of $172,000,000 for half the cost of three storage dams at market interest rates plus one-eighth of one per cent.

"One-eighth of one per cent, that doesn't sound much at all, but over 50 years it amounts

Fulton:

Justice Minister Davie Fulton said last night that the federal government's offer towards the Columbia River development was "the most generous offer ever made by the federal government to any province in the financing and development of a hydro electric project."

"It is this offer that Mr. Bennett has rejected for his own political purposes and to the prejudice of the people of B.C.," said the federal cabinet minister.

"Furthermore, the nature and the terms of Mr. Bennett's rejection establish clearly that he made up his mind to reject it for his own political purposes before he received Mr. Fleming's letter," he said. "I say this because in his statement, as we have heard and read quoted, there are so many errors as to the effect of the federal offer it is obvious he has not considered it."

Bonner:

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last night accused the federal government of "an unwarranted invasion of the sovereignty of the province" in its stand on financing the Columbia River development.

He termed federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton's talk of federal interest arising out of the Canadian-U.S. treaty as "pure twaddle."

NO CAPACITY

"The B.C. government and the B.C. people, by their undertaking and credit, are the only people in the Dominion who can make this project go at all," he said from Vancouver.

"The federal government can hold back on the scheme by failing to conclude the treaty but they have no capacity by property rights or any other interest to make it a success."

Mr. Bonner, a member of the Columbia policy liaison team

City Seat Recount On

A two-vote difference between the last of four successful city council candidates and the first of the runners-up last night added excitement to Victoria's civic elections. (Other voting news on Pages 15, 23, 28.)

In first place, with 3,561 votes in the final count, was Ald. Austin Curtis. In second, with 2,546, was Ald. Arthur Dowell. In third with 2,470, was newcomer Michael John Griffin, and in fourth, with 1,849, was newcomer William C. Hudson.

But next was labor candidate A. W. Toone with 1,847. Returning Officer M. Frank Hunter late last night said he will recount the ballots this morning in the presence of Mr. Hudson and Mr. Toone if both agree to this procedure.

Oddly, the first four names on the ballot were Curtis, Dowell, Griffin and Hudson—a fact which Mr. Toone, listed 10th among the 11 candidates, noted when it appeared at the end of the first complete count that he had lost by 21 votes. A second count narrowed the gap to two votes.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT

"It has a psychological effect on a long ballot like that," he said.

The policies and actions of Victoria's present city council nevertheless appeared to have received general endorsement in the certain election of two aldermen and one young businessman, Mr. Griffin, a plumbing-firm director.

Mr. Griffin had not differed greatly with present council policies in seeking election. Nor had Mr. Hudson, who retired last summer as office manager of an insurance company branch.

Mr. Toone, however, was one of several candidates who suggested that business was better represented on council than home-owners, and that this situation should be changed at the polls.

HAPPY RESULTS

Mayor Percy Scourrah was "very happy" with the results of the voting.

"It looks as if we have a

Did Hillary See Rocket Over China?

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—Explorer Sir Edmund Hillary said Thursday he had seen a "phenomenon" in the Mount Everest area which could have been a Communist Chinese rocket.

The New Zealander told a press conference he and members of his Himalayan expedition saw a vapor trail and a flash of fire moving in a zig-zag over Tibet at 7 p.m. one night in the third week of October.

Rookie Alderman Bumps Into Mayor

Mike Griffin, who was elected to city council just last night, bumped into Mayor Scourrah early this morning as they were both in their cars.

"They were bound to run into one another sooner or later," cracked a bystander, surveying minor damage to the mayor's shiny limousine and the telephone pole it knocked down.

It spun the mayor's car diagonally across the intersection where it sheared off a telephone pole at the base. No one was injured.

U.S. Road Builder Stays in Jail

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's Appeal Court Thursday rejected an appeal by an American road builder who had been given an indefinite prison sentence for contempt of court.

The court ordered that Montana contractor C. W. Thornton remain in Oakalla until he pays $25,000 owing to Burton Glazier of Seattle.

Thornton and B.C. Highways

Minister Gagliardi were both convicted of contempt of court. They were found guilty of disobeying a 1959 court order which directed that any funds the highways department may pay to Thornton be paid to a receiver in Vancouver. This order followed a judgment granted against the contractor by Glazier.

Mr. Gagliardi is expected to open his appeal against the contempt charge in appeal court today. He was fined $1,000 on conviction.

City's Needy Sure Winners In Tonight's Hockey Duel

No one can predict the outcome of tonight's duel between Victoria Cougars and the Winnipeg Warriors but with the help of generous hockey fans Greater Victoria's 500 most needy families will be sure winners.

Daily Colonist carriers will be stationed at various points throughout the arena to stage a collection for The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund. Carriers will be easily identified.

A donation large or small for the 500 Fund through the carriers is an investment in hope for 500 needy families at Christmas time when their wants are hardest felt.

Every cent of the money donated at the game goes directly into the 500 Fund, as do all regular donations. There are no costs for administration whatever.

Regular donations should be addressed to The Daily Colonist 500 Christmas Fund and mailed or left at the main office at 2631 Douglas Street or the downtown office at 1215 Broad Street.
